NEW YORK DOCTOR DISCOVERS A DRAMATIC NEW BREAKTHROUGH TO CURE OVERWEIGHT.
10,000 PATIENTS LOSE POUNDS AND INCHES QUICKLY AND SAFELY WITH NEVER BEING HUNGRY.

'I lost 85 lbs. of ugly fat in only 2 short months!'

YES, THIS IS MY ASTOUNDING STORY OF HOW I LOST 85 POUNDS OF EXTRA WEIGHT IN ONLY 60 DAYS
NO DIETS NO CALORIE COUNTING NEVER HUNGRY AND COMPLETELY SAFE

In the summer of 1967 I noticed a report written by a New York Doctor who was specializing in Internal Medicine. The doctor wrote that he had helped 10,000 overweight men and women to lose all the weight they desired. These people included Doctors, Nurses, Dieticians, Life Insurance Experts, Actors, Models, and others who had Never Been Able to Reduce Successfully No Matter How Hard They Tried. Yes, these people were permitted as many meals as they wanted — No calories to count. They ate as much or more than ever. Were never hungry AND TO EVERYONE'S AMAZEMENT SAW POUNDS MELT AWAY WITH UNBELIEVABLE SPEED IN THE FIRST 3 DAYS OF FOLLOWING THIS METHOD. Some people actually LOST 25 POUNDS THE FIRST WEEK. After carefully examining the medical report, I decided to give this Doctor's Method a try.

I STARTED TO FOLLOW THIS DOCTOR'S SENSATIONAL PLAN AND TO MY UTTER AMAZEMENT I LOST MORE WEIGHT IN THE FIRST 3 DAYS THAN IF I HARDLY EATEN ANYTHING AT ALL. After seeing such amazing results in ONLY 3 DAYS I continued on — NEVER HUNGRY EVEN ONCE — to lose a total of 85 pounds in only 2 SHORT MONTHS. Never once did I suffer any ill effects from this quick and Dramatic Weight Loss. I had tried many times before to starve myself to lose weight but with this method — with no calories to count and with the big weight loss the very first week gave me the confidence I needed to continue on. Now I can Lose Weight as quickly as I desire and so can you. YES! The more I ate to satisfy my body the more weight I would lose. Now even though I love to eat I have no problem to keep my weight down to what it should be. I urge every overweight man or woman to start my method immediately for those extra pounds and inches are impairing your appearance, your health AND endangering and shortening your life span. OBESITY IS THE NUMBER 1 HEALTH HAZARD IN AMERICA TODAY!! YES, THOSE EXTRA POUNDS WILL KILL YOU SLOWER FOR SOME QUICKER FOR OTHERS

HERE IS THE UNBELIEVABLE RATE AT WHICH THE POUNDS AND INCHES DISAPPEARED
I LOST 35 POUNDS IN THE FIRST 2 WEEKS AND BY THE END OF THE 2ND MONTH (60 DAYS AFTER I HAD STARTED THE PLAN) I WAS 85 POUNDS LIGHTER
YES! I LOST 85 POUNDS IN ONLY 60 DAYS

HOW! EAT UNTIL YOU ARE FULL AND LOSE POUND AFTER POUND!

The pounds actually melt away before your eyes with dramatic weight loss in only 3 days. You'll feel healthier, look better and get back that vitality that you once had.

I ATE AND ATE THOSE EXTRA POUNDS AWAY AND THE MORE FOOD I FELT I NEEDED TO SATISFY ME THE MORE WEIGHT I WOULD LOSE!

Could this be possible? Well it certainly was for me and hundreds of thousands of other men and women like myself who starved and deprived themselves of the food and nourishment they needed. Now with this New Method it is possible for you to maintain your proper weight without depriving yourself of good healthful filling meals. AND BEST OF ALL DON'T COUNT CALORIES! I can't tell you what a blessing this method was to me and what this same method I used can do for you.

THIS AMAZING METHOD HAS NOW BEEN USED BY THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF ALL OVER THE UNITED STATES WITH 100% SUCCESS, SATISFACTION AND WITH COMPLETE SAFETY

Yes, by following this simple method you can actually lose as little or as much excess weight as you desire. All you do is follow my simple directions.

I call my Method ANAPAX. Yes, The ANAPAX Method was the end of my overweight problem and the answer to Hundreds of Thousands of other people, male and female alike that really wanted to look years younger, live longer and get back that pep and energy they once had ... and it can be yours too.

THANKS TO THIS FAMOUS DOCTOR'S DISCOVERY THE BENEFIT OF LOSING WEIGHT AND KEEPING IT OFF PERMANENTLY WITHOUT REALLY TRYING CAN NOW BE YOURS

Here's how simple it is to actually do what I've been talking about this far ... YES to END THAT FAT PROBLEM FOREVER!!

Simply follow the ANAPAX METHOD. All you have to do is to take 3 of my special tablets daily, one before each meal, follow the enclosed simple method ... and that's all I ask you to do. ANAPAX Method will do the rest and Fast Results guaranteed in only 3 days, believe it or not. Trim down quickly and safely as I did to almost half the size I was. I felt and looked like a completely different person with perfect proportions. And not only did I feel years younger but people I hadn't seen for 2 or 3 months hardly could recognize me without my usual bloated appearance.

DRAMATIC WEIGHT LOSS OF 25-60-90-POUNDS OR MORE CAN NOW BE ACCOMPLISHED IN JUST 60 DAYS OR LESS — WITH STARTLING RESULTS IN THE FIRST 3 DAYS OF USING MY FANTASTIC METHOD

The ANAPAX Method is not only the best weight reduction Method available to the public today but many of the foremost personalities in the theatre, show business, movies, etc. are losing pounds and inches with no effort at all for the first time in their lives.

WE ALL KNOW IF YOU STOP EATING COMPLETELY THAT YOU CAN LOSE WEIGHT BUT YOU'LL MAKE YOURSELF SICK, UNCOMFORTABLE, AND ROB YOUR BODY OF ITS VITAL NEEDS

But now ... this is all in the past — losing all the weight you desire can be a simple, fast and safe experience for you by just following the ANAPAX METHOD.

GUARANTEED RESULTS IN JUST 3 DAYS OR YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IN FULL

Take advantage of the ANAPAX Method today! The longer you wait the more you're damaging your health and well being. Take advantage of my 3 Day Trial Absolutely Free. Remember if you don't see the results immediately your money back. I'm not saying that the ANAPAX Method may work for you ... I say the ANAPAX Method WILL work for you ... or it costs you nothing. Try the ANAPAX METHOD at my risk today while the supply is still available.

READ MY AMAZING NO-RISK GUARANTEE CAREFULLY

REAL MEN SCOREBOARD

WHAT'S THE AVERAGE?

The average family in the United States moves every four years, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards About seventy buttons a year are required by the average American. Shaving and getting haircuts occupy thirty-four hundred hours of the average American male's life

The average American holds twelve regular full-time jobs in his lifetime An average of seven babies are born each minute in the United States. The average American office-worker spends the equivalent of almost two full work weeks a year taking coffee breaks The average ant can crawl twelve feet a minute on a fast track

• NAGS AND WAGS

A woman sued for divorce after her husband pawned her wedding ring to bet on the horses then gave the redeemed ring back to her as a Christmas present A court dismissed a speeding charge after the defendant explained he had been rushing to a nearby race track to comfort his horse during a hurricane alert. Because she "felt sorry" for a poor skinny little horse that didn't have a chance, a woman put $100 on its nose. She collected $14,070 when the long shot romped home first After judges at a jumping contest in Holland, had disqualified all entrants because of their poor showing the local veterinarian bet them he could outdo the horses He went the whole distance under his own power winning the wager

• OVERTURNED EVIDENCE

Just about every peace officer in the county was on hand for a hearing on a drunk driving case A visitor obviously a bit shaky from drinking staggered into the court room, headed straight for the table where the state's evidence was sitting, and made a grab for it The assistant district attorney cried, 'Arrest that man,' someone did and the visitor was hauled off to the pokey The evidence? A case of beer

• ODD ITEMS . . .

Wonder if any other big city has a trout stream right in the middle of town, open to local fly fishermen? Philadelphia does A local bartender contends that Grand Marnier if sipped slowly is excellent medication for a sore throat! Tip to cigar smokers don't flick the ashes off your cigar A half inch of ash makes for cooler smoking

• HANDYMAN

Coat the edges of doors and areas around doorknobs with paste wax and the inevitable finger marks will be easier to remove An inexpensive plastic ice-cube tray is an ideal gadget for the workshop—for storing nuts, bolts screws and nails. If you dip nails and screws in nail polish before using they'll hold better and resist rust Remove your wrist watch when working with paint remover It may pit a plastic crystal To retard tarnish on silver jewelry give it a coating of colorless nail polish

• EXPERTS?

After a burglar stole $49.12 from the office of a Florida insurance company that specializes in burglary insurance, officials ruefully revealed that the loss was not insured A woman who was robbed of $400 by six gypsies to whom she had generously given a free meal told police that she felt like abandoning her profession character analysis A clerk in the Police Automobile Theft Bureau telephoned his superior to say he would be late for work because somebody had stolen his car

A man who is in charge of local mosquito control finally discovered why mosquitoes were so abundant in his home They were breeding in his air-cooler Two drivers were quite embarrassed when their cars collided Both were driving instructors.

• SKELETONS

A University is going to one of its closets for skeletons They are the remnants of agile, sharp toothed lizard-like reptiles that lived on the edge of an evergreen forest 230,000,000 years ago and stalked cockroaches and scorpions beside a placid lagoon in what is now Kansas. The cockroaches and scorpions have survived to our day but the reptiles have not. All that remain are fragile fossils embedded in shale kept in cotton-lined cases Until very recently, not much was known about the lizard-like reptiles. They were among the first animals to adapt themselves to dry land

• THIS IS YOUR WIFE

After having advertised in the local paper for a week for 'the name of the party" who stole his 'wife and groceries' from his home, a man ran another notice to correct a misunderstanding "I only want reimbursement for the $22 worth of groceries The man that stole the wife can keep her '

● SYPHILIS, ONLY recently considered to be a disappearing disease, has now been found to be increasing during the past few years. Yet despite the latest increase, the incidence of reported cases is down 82 per cent from its peak in 1943, when penicillin therapy was first introduced. When the effectiveness of penicillin for syphilis was originally demonstrated, a few optimistic Public Health officials thought the dread disease would be under complete control within a few years, but they were reckoning without human nature. As cases of syphilis dramatically dropped, people stopped thinking about it, stopped taking precautions against it, and as a result the rate has started to climb again.

Most distressing part about this recurrence is that the major rise in the venereal disease rate is among the young. Americans under 20 report one new case every 11 minutes. For the statistically minded, more than half of the reported venereal infections were among teen-agers and young adults, although this age group makes up only 13 per cent of the population. Gonorrhea, incidentally, which had its peak year in 1947, has shown a less dramatic drop in cases than syphilis—54% as against the 82% mentioned above—but its rate has continued to go down.

Current reports would seem to indicate that venereal disease is much more common among men than among women. The incidence of syphilis was 30 per cent higher for men; for gonorrhea the figure was a whopping 140 per cent. But like all figures, these may be somewhat misleading; signs of venereal disease being more obvious in men.

A NEW ANTIBIOTIC, kanamycin, has been found. Bristol Laboratories in Syracuse reported that the drug is highly effective against organisms (like staphylococci) which require air to live.

The report states that the drug blocks the process by which the germ cells oxidize food chemicals to obtain energy. When this energy supply is reduced, the cell wall becomes fragile and the cell itself is ultimately destroyed. This is of special interest to medical scientists because the new antibiotic is a "bactericidal" drug—that is, it actually kills the bacteria. Most of the so-called antibiotics now in general use do their dirty work on germs by preventing the disease cells from multiplying.

INSULIN WAS recently used as a murder weapon by a man in England. The drug, which literally has been a life-saver to millions of diabetics throughout the world, was used by a trained nurse (male) to kill his thirty-year-old wife. The woman was found dead in her bath, apparently a victim of drowning. But a post mortem examination showed that the woman had been unconscious prior to entering the tub. The discovery of injection marks led to a search in the tissue underlying the perforations. A comparatively large quantity of unabsorbed insulin was discovered, believed to be only a small fraction of the amount that had been injected.

The husband tried to explain away the injection marks by saying that he had been giving his wife a substance for two weeks in an attempt to induce an abortion. But the post mortem did not uncover any trace of the substance he mentioned, nor were symptoms of a pregnancy evident.

A person less familiar with the use of drugs probably would not have thought of such a method of killing, nor would the materials have been so readily available. A person with greater knowledge of drugs, however, would have realized that a post-mortem examination would reveal discrepancies. Incidentally, this is believed to be the first time a charge of murder by insulin poisoning has been substantiated.

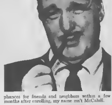
INSULIN AS a specific for diabetes may be on its way out, to be replaced by drugs that can be administered by mouth. At a recent meeting of diabetes experts, the use of pills as an aid for diabetics was a main topic of discussion. So far, the pills that have already been developed do not change the diabetic's way of life—he is merely less dependent on constant, regular hypodermic injections. Some experts, however, do not approve of the pills developed so far, primarily because they fear that the new drugs will cause dangerous or damaging side effects. A large number of diabetics have switched to pills, which are easier to take, but these patients are usually advised by their physicians not to go too long without stopping by for a checkup. Most patients will continue to need occasional shots.

"PARROT FEVER" soon may be a dead issue as a threat to bird lovers. Every year some 300 (out of perhaps 10 000 000) owners of parrots and parakeets in the U.S. come down with psittacosis, or parrot fever. This disease used to be practically untreatable, but with the discovery of antibiotics its usually fatal results became rare. Now a virus expert has discovered a method to keep parakeets free of psittacosis—he injected them regularly with Aureomycin. This worked, but in practice it would be too costly and difficult for most bird owners. Backed by funds from a bird-food concern, he has now found a way to put the antibiotic into the bird's food and hopes to put the treated food on the market. If successful, it will end man's fear of contracting a disease from a sick bird—by the best process of all—keeping the bird itself healthy.

A NEW AND drastic method for the relief of pain is currently under experimental investigation. It promises to be useful for chronic forms of severe pain. In such extreme cases surgeons have sometimes gone so far as to cut the white nerve bundles in the front part of the brain. This has the effect of making an otherwise unbearable pain tolerable, but at the same time it often results in a dulling of the patient's personality. Now a new technique has been developed whereby a small electrode is implanted in the thalamus, near the center of the brain. After the doctors are sure that the location is right, they send a mild current through the electrode, destroying a part of the thalamus, which is a relay point of many nerve impulses. In trials so far this system has worked most effectively, deadening pain without changing the patient's emotional reactions. ●

TOM McCAHILL SAYS:

"The appliance repair field is so uncrowded it's almost __lonely__!"



Someone once said that if you build a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to your door. In the home appliance business, a lot of enterprising companies have gotten rich peddling a long list of handy electrical gadgets for the home. The trouble is, the dozen or more appliances in the average American home can go on the fritz, and men with the proper training to do repairs are as scarce as knee-length skirts on teen agers.

Good Appliance Repairmen are a rare breed these days. Those with a little ambition are booked so solidly you can wait days to get somebody to fix a balky refrigerator or cantankerous toaster. Sometimes, you have to settle for a bum job from a guy who had no business calling himself an Appliance Repairman in the first place.

This brings me to my point. If you want to make money in a field that's begging for trained technicians, there's a fine, low cost home study plan available that teaches you how to handle every type of Appliance repair in detail — including refrigeration, air conditioners, and even small gas engines. The course was prepared by the instructors at National Radio Institute. This is the oldest and largest home-study school in the Electronics/Electrical fields with more than fifty years' experience training men like yourself for new careers or spare time or full time businesses of their own.

A few years ago NRI recognized the increasing demand for trained Appliance Repairmen. They set about preparing well-illustrated, easy-to-understand lessons that teach you how to repair home, commercial and farm Appliances. NRI even added a professional Appliance Tester that's included in their low tuition. With the Tester and a few basic tools you probably already have, you're equipped to service most Electrical Appliances. If you aren't making $5 to $7 an hour in spare time fixing Appliances for friends and neighbors within a few months after enrolling, my name isn't McCahill.

The reason I'm no doubting Thomas is because the staff at NRI is composed of experienced instructors who guide you through the course with more personal attention than you'd get in many classrooms. With the kind of help they give a student and the kind of course they have, you can be the man in demand in this field — even if you've never rewired a plug, or got fed up with school at the 9th grade.

The best advice I can give you is to clip the coupon below and send for the NRI Appliance Training Catalog. It's free, and there's no obligation. NRI doesn't employ salesmen, so nobody will be knocking at your door. All it will cost you is a postage stamp. Take it from Uncle Tom, the Appliance Repair field needs good men. Now.

A Fortune In Soft, Yellow Gold--Waiting To Be Taken!

I THOUGHT I COULD take anything. But even after eight years living and wandering among some of the world's most savage and uncivilized peoples, this was too much. Death, in its most excruciating forms hadn't meant a thing to me—until now. Yet the sight of pretty, young Patty Wecker, lying there on the ground, her soft, nude body spreadeagled and staked in the dust, her sweet blue eyes staring blindly at the sun through eyelids that had been sewn open, while the fatuous vultures strutted grandly beside her, idly pecking now and then at her firm flesh, drove me almost out of my mind. She couldn't even scream. The mass of dry, dusted grass stuffed into her open mouth stifled every sound. She was in hell, absolute and unyielding hell—and there wasn't one damn thing I could do except stand where I was and wait for her to die.

Was it worth it? Was anything worth this—even a fortune so vast that an ordinary man can hardly grasp the amount. Ten million—fifty million—a billion! Who knows. The looted treasure of a nation—how much is that?

The rumors had been kicking around for nearly a century. The vast treasure of old Mexico. The hoard of Montezuma. Was that the prize that Maximilian, the Hapsburg interloper had found when he briefly ruled the old land.

Maximilian was dead, murdered. But when the new rulers of Mexico looked—there was no treasure—that is not nearly what had been expected. Had the Austrian found it? Had anyone ever seen it? What does it matter anyway. The rumors were there. And nothing could stop them. A thousand men had searched and located nothing.

And then I got a clue. It was an old, brass statue of a woman—obviously Indian—and equally obviously, old—very old. It wasn't worth much, maybe a hundred dollars at the best. I bought it for twenty. And then came the day I scratched it—accidentally and found that underneath the thick coating—maybe half an inch thick—of common metal, the statue was gold—soft—heavy and pure. I stripped off the brass and weighed what remained. Eight pounds even, troy, 96 ounces of gold at $35 an ounce. You might say I'd made a fair profit. I agree

by MELTON CORNETT

Natives, the last remnants of the great Mayan civilization, trek across the rolling plains of ancient Yucatan. Here naked savages live much as they must have in times even before the Spanish Conquest of Montezuma.

So I did a little checking, tracing back on the idol. I paid out good cash for information, a lot of cash. The locals thought I was crazy. But in Mexico—as anywhere—money talks and the trail led me rapidly to Yucatan. From there it disappeared back into wild interior. I had a pretty good idea where to look, but I was stymied.

Sure, the three grand plus for the statue took me quite a way. The few thousand more I had in the bank took me further. But for the kind of trip I was planning on taking, I needed money in great big gobs. That I didn't have.

So I did the next best thing to running things on my own. I took in some partners. They were greedy and brainless, but they did have dough.

Phil Tasker—yellow as a mongrel dog. He'd run if you sneezed in his direction. But he had money and he wanted more.

Myra Weeker—30 years old—widow—loaded with her late husband's dough. Driven by two ambitions—one to make every man she met, all at the same time if possible. Two—to latch on to every loose bit of money that her sticky fingers could touch.

Myra's step-daughter—Patty—19—under the expert tutelage of her "guardian" rapidly turning into a carbon copy—sex mad and money crazy.

A ten day bedroom bout in a mountain villa north of Tampico convinced the dames. A look at the idol convinced Tasker. So, lo and behold, one lovely spring morning saw the four of us—two fellows and two dames—nice and cozy—heading away from the Yucatan coast off on the search for treasure. A backlog of fifty thousand bank-safe dollar bills guaranteed that we'd have the best of everything.

It was not unpleasant in the back country. True my dear, sweet partners complained incessantly, but, what the Hell, anything short of the service at the Ritz would have accomplished that. But we managed and well. By day we hacked our way from village to village attempting to track down the source of my idol. By night, it was light up the sky with one—or both of the charming ladies. They were quite uninhibited. I'm afraid that Tasker didn't approve at all. Not that Tasker ever turned either one of them down. But he would have preferred something a bit more formal.

We'd been away from the centers of civilization for about ten days when we ran across Juan. He was a slimy little SOB. But, in a business like mine you don't usually meet any other kind. Like all of the tribe of adventurers, he seemed to have a special kind of nose for hard cash. He was perfectly willing to take what we had to offer and to give something in exchange—if he had to.

I'm not a half bad shot. I'm also a hell of a lot bigger than he was.

So off we marched for another few days, Juan leading the way. At that point we were somewhere in the back of Campeche state not too far from the Guatamalan border, I'd estimate, though exactly where I still don't know.

At any rate, we came to this jungle village. Indians pure and simple, and so far removed from knowledge of the outside world that I doubt if Columbus could have told the difference.

Something was definitely wrong with the set up. I couldn't put my finger on it, and I doubt if either I or anyone else could have picked out one item of behaviour on the part of the villagers. But it was there. The village headman was just a shade too polite. The people were just a trace too quiet. There were only the slightest bit of whisperings behind our backs. There was nothing substantial. Yet I sensed that something terrible was about to happen.

We were put up in an empty hut. I checked my guns carefully and that night I slept as lightly as a fly. There was nothing.

In the morning I talked with the headman. He was all smiles. Yes, he knew the story of the idol goddess. Certainly it had come from that village. One of the young boys had found it. Not only was he free with the information, but he announced that he'd be only too happy to show us exactly where it had come from.

I wasn't merely amazed. I was shocked absolutely speechless. I've dealt with Indians and other primitives for better than fifteen years. And NEVER—absolutely NEVER had any of them offered anything at all unasked. This was crazy. It had every indication of a trap.

But what was I supposed to do? I'd talked three not entirely innocent people into putting up their dough to back his search. Now the answer was being tossed right into our laps. I couldn't say we weren't interested. I couldn't refuse to go and have a look. I couldn't do a damn thing except bubble with suspicion, determine to keep my eyes and ears open—and walk right into the spider's web.

And walk we did. Two of the easiest miles of the entire expedition. Right back into the low hills with a laughing ten year old as our guide.

THE ENTRANCE to the cave was a low, black serpent's mouth, brooding on an ugly hillside. Slashed boulders, hanging from the roof like vicious teeth, threatened to topple inward at any instant. Under any normal circumstance I'd have refused to enter the damn place on any account. But now with my three partners pushing and shoving in order to be the first inside, for all of our sakes, I had to swallow my dread and follow. The boy, still laughing, sat down on the meadow below the cave preparing to wait for us. He was no fool.

I scrambled over the lip of the cave door. The ground, a jumbled mass of fallen rock, sloped down into the hillside. Picking my way cautiously, I worked my way down into the main cavern room.

It wasn't too bad inside. The doorway let in more than enough light to see clearly. Perhaps a lamp would have been helpful, but it wasn't really absolutely necessary. We could all see well enough to get around—and even to explore.

The others were dashing around, madly, aimlessly, shouting to each other like a bunch of kids. They hadn't found anything at all at first glance, though from the well trampled look of the earth floor, there had been plenty of activity here in the past—and not so distant past either. The boy hadn't been the first of that village in the cave by a long shot. That was obvious.

I glanced back at the entrance. There was nothing. I shrugged, pulled out a flashlight and began to look around me.

The huge picture on the wall stopped me in my tracks. How can I describe it? A woman—the original of my idol, no doubt—nude, painted in a brilliant red, some twenty feet in height, was posed with some dozen obviously Indian men, Mayan, from their costumes, I'd judge. What they were doing is unprintable. No matter how good your imagination, I doubt if you could conceive this combination.

But one thing did stand out. Looked at from the peculiar perspective of the point immediately below the painting, the bodies of the participants in that hellish orgy formed a mishapen arrow. It pointed at a mass of small, broken rocks, a miniature cairn in corner of the cave.

Curiously, I walked over to the rock pile and began moving the stones. Five minutes work, and my aimlessness disappeared. There was a cavity in there. I reached my arm inside. I felt something. I grasped it and pulled it into the light, and gasped. It was a necklace of the purest gold.

I guess I must have shouted, because a moment later, there were all beside me, hands busily pulling at the stones.

They fell away quickly now. And then, without warning—we'd found it.

Five huge brassbound chests lay in a huge depression in the rock. Pull as we would, Tasker and I could hardly budge them. But finally, using rocks as prys and levers, with all four of us working together, the girls holding the pry while Tasker and I heaved, we managed to work one of them up into the cave. The lock was old and rusted. I didn't waste time with it. I pulled my pistol and fired. The old lock fell away. We pulled back the lid—and our last inhibitions disappeared, as a cascade of gold—coins, bracelets, necklaces, rings and ingots flowed out onto the ground.

The girls screamed with delight, grabbing up handsful of the gold. Tasker was stuffing coins into his pocket as if they'd disappear. I was looking on, stunned, trying to estimate mentally the value of what we'd found.

A shadow fell over the room. I looked up, and shouted in horror.

The entire Indian village seemed to be trying to come through the cave door. But there was no friendliness now. Armed with bows, spears and a few old rusty guns, they were bent on our murder.

At my shout, one of the braves fired his bow. An arrow sang across the room and caught Tasker in the side. He howled with the pain of it.

I still had my pistol in my hand. I hadn't put it back in the holster after shooting off the lock. Whirling, I fired, hardly aiming. One of the Indians dropped. I fired again and still again. I heard another gun go off. Myra, bless her, had found enough guts and brains to use her own pistol. The Indians retreated.

I moved up the slope after them, pushing new cartridges into the gun as I ran. I hoped to be able to scare the Indians far enough away, so that at least we might have a chance to get out of the cave. Anything was better than being trapped.

I could hear Tasker moaning inside. The firing stopped behind me. I gathered that the girls were trying to take care of him. I reached the cave door and peered out. I could see the Indians hovering among the bushes, some fifty or sixty feet away. I let off a shot.

I heard a light footstep behind me. I wondered which of the girls was coming to help. I turned to say a word of encouragement. I just saw the club as it swung down toward my head. My last thought before the blackness was to curse. Why hadn't I realized that there might be a second entrance . . .

THE FIRST sensation of consciousness was pain, as the sunlight seemed to sear my eyes. I opened them. I was bound tightly to a tree. Beside me Myra, also tied up, was weeping softly. I couldn't see Tasker. But out in the middle of the village square Patty, nude, was spreadeagled, her limbs stretched to their utmost, making movement impossible, was staring blankly up into the brilliant sun. Her eyes—I shivered at the sight, had been rudely stitched open. A gag of straw tightly bound across her mouth kept her from uttering a sound. And beside her, a vulture, a huge, evil thing strutted idly, every now and then grabbing down at her body and coming up with a mouthful of soft firm flesh.

Around her, in a circle, sat the Indians. They squatted silently, each intent on the horrible drama before them, fascinated by the hell the girl was enduring.

The bird reached down and plucked at an eye. A huge shivering racked through the body. I turned my head. I couldn't watch.

How long did the terrible ordeal go on I don't know. Maybe an hour—maybe two. The bird wasn't in any hurry and neither were the Indians. But finally it was over. The girl was dead. And now not one, but a dozen vultures were there, plucking the last trace of flesh from the firm, young bones.

They cut us down then. Half a dozen Indians prodded us back to the same hut we'd been in the night before. Myra, her shoulders hunched, dry-eyed only because there were no more tears left, sank on the floor. It was a good hour before she told me what had happened.

Twenty braves had rushed them in the cave. They hadn't even had a chance to shout a warning. They'd dragged us back to the village, the girls bound, Tasker still wild from his wound, and me unconscious. Tasker died before we got back. The Indians were sorry about that. They wanted all of us alive. The brave who had shot Tasker was severely reprimanded. It seems he'd used a poisoned arrow.

The headman told the women what was in store. They were Mayas, still. They had been entrusted, they claimed, with all the ancient treasures of Mexico and they meant to preserve them. They were convinced that only through the old religion could they hope to succeed. So, we were to be sacrifices to the sun goddess, as were all who came to the village in search of treasure. Each day, at noon, one of us would be a victim. Patty, the youngest, had been chosen to go first. Tomorrow—"

I checked the hut. It was solid. There was no way out. And in front, a spear-carrying Indian sat immobile. No chance of getting by him.

The day passed. I was getting hungry and thirsty. But there was no sign of either food or drink. We'd have to exist—if we could—on our own inner strength. Night came. I didn't even try to sleep.

There was a rustle and a small hiss behind us. I looked around. The hiss came again—directly behind me—at the wall. I moved back there. I hissed in reply.

"Speak quietly, I beg you. This is Juan—your guide—remember."

"Yes, Juan. I hear you. Can you help us."

"I'll help. See. At the ground. I am digging a tiny hole. Reach down. Here. A knife. Use it well. Be quick, if you can—and silent. If you get by the Indian at the door, come around the back. If you—and I are lucky—pray, senor, I am no damnable heathen idol worshipper."

I felt the point of the blade as it slid through. After a moment, a slender, stiletto like knife was in my hand. I whispered a "Thanks" and moved back inside. I shook Myra awake and whispered the story to her. I heard her praying as I slipped as quietly as I could toward the doorway. I motioned Myra to call out.

"Please," she whimpered, pushing her head out the door, "I'm thirsty. Give me water."

The Indian guard turned, threateningly, motioning her to get back inside, moving toward her, spear raised to enforce his order. He came closer—closer.

I lunged, knife low, arm sweeping up toward the gut. Coming from the deep shadow, he never even saw me until the last instant, and then the blade was in his belly right up to the hilt as my arm twisted back and forth. He fell grunting, as I pulled back my arm. A second slice across the throat, and he was dead.

Grabbing his spear, we dragged him inside, then Myra and I slipped out. There seemed to be no one about. A moment later we were behind the hut, where Juan joined us.

"These damned savages," he was muttering, "they never even paid me for bringing you here. This will teach them." He saw us and smiled. "Come—come quickly. Follow me."

The jungle was only fifty yards away. Once there, we followed Juan through the most twisted jungle trail. After a while we stopped. I could hear water nearby.

"Over there," he told us. "Drink—but quickly. Then come. We must put distance between the village before daylight. The Indios will not come in the dark. They are heathens and fear devils. But in the morning—God help us if they catch up with us."

Well, that's about it. A week of jungle travel and we were back in the first civilized point. From there it was only a matter of time till the nightmare was over.

I married Myra. We live in Tampico now. She's still wealthy. But not what we might have been—if . . .

The treasure is still there—in the back jungle hills of Campeche. It's easy to get to. Juan is in Yucatan and can give you full directions. But he won't guide you—and neither will I. I've had enough—and he has more

How The Mob Keeps It's Vice Houses Filled With Fresh, Young Girls!

Lure them in with promises and then keep them there by threats of violence—that's the age-old formula for stocking fresh flesh!

by HARLAND P. FLOURIE

ADA MARTENSON IS a prostitute. About three months ago, following an arrest and conviction for "soliciting" she underwent a psychological examination under the sponsorship of the State. She wasn't the least bit bashful or backward in her answers. In reply to the question, "What got you started in this business," she laughed. It was a short, hard, humorless, almost sneering kind of laugh.

"What got me started?" she said. "Simple. A couple of guys beat the hell out of me. When I was lying on the ground, feeling as if every bone in my body was broken, they told me that it was only a sample of what I'd get if I didn't start hustling. So I started. That's all there was to it."

Unusual? Well maybe a little. Oh there's nothing strange about the brutality of the boys who control the vice industry. When they have to get rough, they get damn rough. What was strange was the fact that up to the time of her beating, as far as could be determined, Ada had had no direct contact at all with the entire vice picture. Most of the girls who do get involved have been playing around the fringes of prostitution for some time and are fully aware of what is happening around them.

Now don't get me wrong. The vice industry is definitely not peopled with a huge mass of innocent maidens, held against their will by whip-slinging white slavers.

At least seven out of every ten girls entering the business of prostitution do so of their own will. For a few of these the reasons are deeply buried in psychology. For most, the lure is laziness and easy money.

But the remaining three—that is 30% of all women involved are not volunteer labor—at least not in the strictest sense. They are prostituting themselves because they have to, because they were forced to, by reason of fear, physical beating or out and out blackmail.

Patricia is a good example. Age 19. Occupation waitress. She'd been employed for some three months in a dive outside Chicago, that was a well known hangout for prostitutes. She admitted freely that she was perfectly aware of what was taking place.

THEY'LL TRY ANYTHING

Next time your pig bites somebody, watch it. He may go on trial!

by NAT McKELVEY

HANGING SHOULDN'T happen to a dog. Or a mule. Or even a pig. But it has.

At Falaise, France, in 1386, a sow ran amuck, biting a child about the face and arm. The child died. Aroused townsfolk captured the homicidal porker, dragged it to jail, and then to a trial court.

Defense counsel—oh, yes, the pig had a lawyer—argued brilliantly, but his case was weak. There were witnesses to the unprovoked attack on the child. The magistrates conferred, studied the evidence and found the pig guilty.

Solemnly, the black-robed justices read their verdict. "You shall be hanged by the neck until dead." But as a gesture to the Biblical "eye for an eye," they decreed the sow must first submit to maiming of the head and one foreleg. A professional executioner, imported from Paris, handled the details.

To indicate its responsibility, the executioner attired the sow in men's clothing. Before a hooting mob in the public square, the hangman hauled his grotesque prisoner. Carefully, the Parisian expert adjusted the noose. In a few minutes the sow had become pork, the sentence carried out.

Medieval records are replete with many accounts of sheriffs and jailers who had a hand in the rites of condemned animal criminals. Agents of the law required reimbursement for bringing justice to errant mammals—so much for board and room, so much for a hanging rope, so much for the professional headsman.

The drain on the public treasury must have been large, for during the Middle Ages, a steady stream of criminal animals filed relentlessly from jail to gibbet.

Even in the England of Queen Victoria's day, the Crown expropriated and hanged dogs tried and found guilty of killing a human being. In Switzerland, as recently as 1906, authorities haled into court a dog, charged with complicity in the murder of one Herr Marger. The unhappy man, according to the record had been set upon by two men and the dog. After the dog had killed the victim, the men robbed the corpse. Tried, the dog, as well as its masters, was pronounced guilty.

Strange as this may seem, it had its counterpart in twentieth-century Kentucky. There Old King, a foxhound, and his two puppies faced a in criminal court in Clark County. Accused of wantonly killing sheep, King heard a mountain of evidence against him The jury found him guilty, and the judge pronounced the death sentence Frantic representations by the dog's owner eventually moved the court to commute sentence to banishment from Kentucky for life The pups, being minors, won acquittal

No less authority than the Holy Bible fixes the liability of animals for criminal acts. A portion of the Book of Exodus declares

"If an ox gore a man or a woman that they die then the ox shall be surely stoned and his flesh shall not be eaten but the owner of the ox shall be quit

"But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death."

Under different circumstances, the ox might be asked to pay a fine for his careless acts, for the Bible decrees

"If the ox shall push a manservant or a maid-servant, he shall give unto their master thirty shekels of silver, and the ox shall be stoned." On the matter of collecting this judgment against the ox, the Bible is silent.

KANSAS LEGISLATORS who passed a statute aimed at stallions and jacks must have been Bible students The prairie pundits wrote a law declaring that "stallions and jacks shall be liable for damages if they escape from their owners." Like the Biblical sages, the Kansas folk, too, failed to suggest means for collecting

To attorneys of medieval Europe, the Kansas law would have seemed entirely reasonable Many a lawyer during those times, acquired an enviable reputation for his knowledge of animal law and for his skill in exploiting it.

With ecaspiate gravity, these men defended, not only four-footed clients but others including flies, worms, snails, locusts, weevils, doves and leeches

Imagine a court room in the French hamlet of Mayence where a swarm of Spanish flies stood trial As peasant witnesses complained, the flies were undeniably guilty of molesting livestock and destroying crops The defense attorney, unable to secure acquittal, did the next best thing He actually obtained for his clients, the flies, a tract of land on which they would serve their exile

In the Swiss Tyrol, in 1519, other attorneys earnestly defended moles charged with menacing the fields of poor farmers. The lawyer lost his case, but nonetheless, he wrote legal history Not able to prevent a judgment of banishment against his clients, he managed a safe conduct of fourteen days for female moles that were pregnant!

Previously, at Basle, Switzerland, magistrates had sentenced a rooster to be burned at the stake for doing what no self-respecting rooster should ever do—laying an egg

Not unknown to modern science, rooster eggs, in 1475 and thereabouts, scared the wits out of God-fearing folk One of these rare eggs, according to belief, provided the most potent ingredient for witch ointment If hatched by a snake or by the sun, the rooster egg produced a cockatrice This unlikely fowl could, by casting the 'evil eye,'' cause a person to drop dead

It is not surprising that a rooster who could produce such a monstrosity would be regarded ,with less than esteem

The men who conducted animal trials were not devoid of a sense of justice however warped. Though they might convict a pig of murder, they often remanded him to torture of the rack to see if they could extract a confession If, under this rugged persuasion, the pig failed to confess, he won commutation of the death sentence to banishment. It sounds silly, but it had the practical advantage of saving some good eating for a future date for no porker of record has ever said anything more rational than "oink"

PROBABLY THE MOST brilliant legal gymnastics on behalf of animals were performed at Autun, France, by Bartholomew Chassenee His clients were rats, their crime the total destruction of the barley crop of the province

Chassenee, with true legal acumen searched the original indictment for errors He declared (1) that the complaint failed to join all parties in that it did not cite all rats in every parish, and (2) that it failed to consider tenency for sick and aging rodents

Having thus far blasted the prosecution's case, Chassenee proceeded to the coup de grace

My clients," he argued before the judges "are entitled to safe conduct to court. I therefore ask your honors to demand bonds of all parish cats that they will agree not to molest any of the defendants!"

Surprisingly, the magistrates agreed. Town criers shouted the edict, notifying all felines to post immediate bond The cats, entirely innocent of the vagaries of man, failed to comply. The court could do nothing but dismiss the case, which promptly became a sixteenth-century cause celebre Overnight, Barthlomew Chassenee's animal practice swelled, and he became fabulously rich

A chimpanzee who ran afoul of the law at South Bend Indiana, could have used a Chassenee with profit Part of an animal act, the chimp's most notable trick was smoking a cigarette which he did with the studied nonchalance of a debutante Unfortunately South Bend had an ordinance against smoking in public

Apparently the chimp could not read or understand English as well as he could smoke—nor had his trainer advised him of his legal liability Hoosier cops arrested the monk, hauled him to court where a justice heard the case

'Five dollars or five days,'' intoned the magistrate

Even a four-footed felon can't win ●

THE SCREAMING KILLER OF JERUSALEM

by HENRY W MADISON

THERE WAS SOMETHING definitely wrong with the man who boarded the ship at the Bulgarian port of Verna in the summer of 1912 Of course, no one would comment on it. After all, he'd paid his passage and was entitled to all the service and all the condescension that went with it But still, it didn't take long for anyone who chanced to meet him as he strolled about the deck to get the distinct impression that Boris Steglovich was peculiar

It was his eyes that first struck awe in his fellow passengers They seemed to burn with an inward fire that cut right into people's souls. His piercing stare seemed to belong to someone from another world, and he seemed peculiarly preoccupied, like a man in a dream.

And then there were his remarks. They didn't make sense It was as if he were answering questions that had never been asked, questions that hadn't even been heard by anyone other than himself It was disturbing It was upsetting It was frightening.

By the third day out, the other passengers had stopped talking to Boris entirely. But that didn't seem to bother him. He buried himself in his Bible, reading and reciting it aloud for hours on end Those who passed by his steamer chair could hear him mumbling gutturally in Bulgarian

"Just another religious fanatic," shrugged the Captain "Lord knows, we've had enough of them in our time. Maybe he's a little stranger than most, but that's his affair isn't it?" Of course, the Captain was an Englishman, and that breed is well-known for respecting privacy, even of the most outlandish sorts

The sea voyage didn't seem to improve Boris's disposition After they passed the Golden Horn of Constantinople (now Istanbul) he became, if anything, even gloomier and more intolerable That he obviously hated the Turks could easily be understood After all, the Bulgars of that period had ample reason for their intense feeling But why did he have to take it out on (Continued on page 36)

SEX SECRETS OF AN ORIENTAL HAREM!

For 50 years I've kept my girls happy by following advice from Karma Sutra!

by IBRIHAM IBEN HUSSEIN

IT WAS ONLY A very few years ago that one of my grandsons attended one of your American colleges. I was extremely interested in getting from him as many details of your way of life as I possibly could. I instructed him to bring back to me as much written information as he could find. As an obedient boy, he did so.

Perhaps I have read your literature in the wrong spirit, perhaps I have not interpreted your great authors and philosophers correctly, perhaps I have made some fundamental error in translation—all this is possible. But, if I have read correctly, your entire civilization seems based on one, single principle—that each man shall take for himself only one, woman!

Of course, in the matter of wealth and power, your nation has achieved greatness. But you are sacrificing something far more important to attain this statue.

It appears to me that it is totally impossible for a normal man, in ordinary good health, to live a life of happiness, satisfaction, delight and comfort with only one woman. One woman is not enough for any man I know. I have lived, may Allah be praised, for 80 happy years. I have sired many fine, strong sons. I have gained the respect of my friends and neighbors. I have achieved enough worldly goods to be able to give my family those comforts which the standards of modern civilization demand.

But I know too, that there is more to life than just working and striving for others. That is good, certainly. Yet, every man who serves the world and his family deserves happiness and comfort in exchange. And there is only one way to gain such comfort—by possessing sufficient women to allow for complete daily enchantment; to permit eternal joy in the relaxation of one's private chambers, to allow enough change so that there will never be disillusionment.

Today, in my eightieth year, I have four wonderful wives and fourteen concubines. Without them, my life would be as barren as the desert. And lest you misunderstand, I add that these women of mine range in age from my first wife—the wife of my youth, who is 76, to my youngest concubine, a delicious morsel of 16.

Never once, from the day my father, may he rest in Allah's heaven, gave me my first dagger, to the day I write these words, 66 years later, have I ever once failed any of my women, at any time, in the privacy of my chamber, or in the public defense of their honor.

Strength comes to him who can use it. Allah has given the gift of virility to man. Only such a man who fails to use his gift to the fullest, will ever lose it. Monogamy is the curse of Shaltan. Men who follow that precept, wither, weaken and grow soft. They lie in their beds as invalids and depend on others to do their work and their duty. They are a burden on their sons and grandsons, and a drain on the vitality of their nation.

ONCE, WHEN I WAS younger, I journeyed with my father into Africa on a venture of business. While there, I witnessed the ceremony in which the young son of a chief was inducted into manhood. There, before the tribe, gathered in open conclave, he was presented with twelve young girls. To demonstrate his right to manhood, he was required to possess each of these women in turn.

I stupidly asked the reason for this procedure. I was told, in words that I shall never forget. "The age of a man is marked by the number of his women. A new one is added each time the sun returns from the south. One who cannot possess these women can not possibly claim the strength to lead his tribe in battle. This is the mark of a warrior, this is the test of a chief."

Why is the name of Suleimon ibn Daoid known from one end of this earth to the other? Why is he revered in religion, celebrated in song and story after so many thousands of years? Why is he looked upon as the wisest of wise men?

He had one thousand and one women. From consorting with them, he received the vigor, the strength and the healthful ways of life necessary to improve his mind, strengthen his physical power and sharpen the keenness of his political judgment.

You men in America, if I read your troubles truly, are constantly complaining of your failing, weakening sex powers. But you fail to see what is right before your eyes. This is a natural consequence of your one woman philosophy. Familiarity, as it is said, breeds contempt. When you look upon a single woman, day after day, night after night, eternity after eternity, is it any wonder that you become bored, uninterested and unfeeling?

Even a houri will pall, after a while, if one consorts with only that houri. You will grow to know every mark, every curve, of that woman as well as you know the disposition of your favorite camel. You know her words, her postures, her likes and dislikes, you know every facet of her bedroom behavior so completely, that even were you deaf and blind, you would still not miss a single word, a single overture, a single smile, expression or movement.

If I had lived in that manner, with my first wife alone, by now I would long since have grown tired of women. I would have abandoned my activity and lapsed into a useless senescence, unrelieved by love, fiery passion, or demands for personal satisfaction. In short, I would have been like you, dead before I had even begun to live.

But with a new face each day, with a new challenge, a new shape of desire writhing before me at all times, my spirit is kept alert, my body has new and stronger reasons to respond with fevered heat to the charms I see before me. I never get bored with my women. I never tire of any of them, since I do not see any one, too many times in succession. The simplest arithmetic will tell you that I am with each woman only twice a month. Each time, it is like meeting a new bride.

It has been suggested (Continued on page 55)

Mac, shown here shortly before his brush with death. He was then commander of the 84th Brigade in France.

POW!

by HOWARD L. OLECK

IT'S PRETTY HARD to pinpoint the blame, but one thing is certain: it was a mess—the biggest, stickiest foul-up of World War I. Despite its uproariously funny aspect, it had its tragic side. A lot of good Joes were shot—many of them fatally. Although one takes it for granted that soldiers in battle will inevitably die, it's hardly pleasant to think that the killing was done by other American units. At that price, the "mistake" was hardly humorous.

The entire business is a perfect example of how the military mind can make hash out of the simplest thing. They can understand the "book," but once it goes beyond the pages of an army manual, it gets too complicated.

It was November, 1918 and the end of World War I was only a week away. The Germans were beaten and broken, scattering in every direction. The Allied Armies were advancing steadily, although there was still opposition. That's important. But enemy resistance was sporadic.

One bright morning, the French General Staff looked at the map and noticed that the American Armies were marching straight toward the ancient fortress city of Sedan.

That much was fine.

But in retrospect, Sedan had been the scene of France's greatest defeat, the humiliating rout of 1870 when Bismark's Prussian legions had destroyed the nation. The defeat left a legacy of bitterness and hate that has remained to this day.

Six months earlier, the situation wouldn't have disturbed a soul. There would only have been grim smiles of satisfaction that another

NEW RACKET IN SMUGGLED

by RENE MOTARD

IN PARIS, theree young girls are found murdered and multilated in a deserted warehouse

London police raid a Soho apartment and arrest 26 teen-agers who, the officers way, were engaged in a marathon sexual orgy that "defied all description" The youngsters were so crazed and frenzied that it was necessary to place them in strait jackets

In Munich, Germany several men are found dead—three of them in a single day Post-mortem examinations show that they died from "over-exhaustion caused by drug-induced sexual excesses and exertions"

Such incidents have been reported all over Europe in recent months They tell of sexually-inspired crimes and atrocities and monstrous orgies staged after the participants had used one or another of two new and terrible drugs

The illicit dealers who have begun to traffic in these sex-excitants on the Continent have named them "Bulcan" and "Excitin." Both, investigation shows, originate in Dahomey, a former French colony sandwiched between Ghana and Nigeria on Africa's West Coast. Dahomey is now an Independent Republic

The drugs have long been known to—and used by—the gris-gris men, witch doctors who act as high priests of Dahomey's dark and bloody K'po leopard cult.

"Bulcan" is derived from the bepundo plant, "Excitin" is made from the roots of the takall plant—a low, flowering shrub Both plants are unique to Dahomey and the narcotics manufactured from them by the gris-gris men have been used in "vodun" rites for centuries

These rites, which center around sex-and-blood-sacrifices to K'po, the leopard deity, have been described as "the mos savage and violent of any rituals ever observed among African natives."

Entire villages and tribes participate in the orgies which begin with the ceremonial eating of one or another—but never both—of the drugs. Abandoned, mass carnality, climaxed by the ritual mutilation-murder of a couple engaged in

They're called Bulcan and Excitin and together they form one of the deadliest threats to modern man. Ona shot from either and you go into a frenzied sex fantasy that could lead to death!

LOVE POTIONS!

passion is the order of a K'po ritual.

Although the exact form the rites take may vary, they always follow a hideous, bloody pattern of Saturnalia and violence.

Dr. Emile LeBlanc, chief of the French Medical Survey Department in Abomey, capital of Dahomey—is one of the world's outstanding authorities on the "Devil Drugs of Dahomey." He has long observed its use—and its hideous effects—on natives in the "back-country," and is one of the very few white men ever to do so.

"The two drugs look alike—both are fine powdered and snow white. They can be mistaken for face-powder or finely sifted flour," he declares. "Both are odorless and virtually tasteless, although what is called Bulcan—the narcotic made from the bepundo plant—is faintly sweetish."

According to Dr. LeBlanc and the medical authorities who have now studied the drugs' effects on white men, Bulcan induces an ecstatic "zombie"-like trance state in the user.

"Bulcan breaks down all conscious and subconscious moral inhibitions in the human mind," they explain. "The user is able to walk and to act, but his brain becomes a sort of monstrous cinema screen in which he 'sees' ghastly, perverted fantasies. If he—or she—is in the company of others, he wants to imitate and duplicate his fantasies. These generally encompass the most depraved and savage sexual aberrations . . ."

As for Excitin, Dr. Le Blanc identified it as an out-and-out aphrodisiac several years ago.

"It spurs the user to engage in incredible sexual excesses," he states. "Excitin has a dual effect. It not only acts as a sex stimulant, but is also a physical stimulant—one that creates artificial energy, allowing—even forcing—a human being on to greater exertions even though the user's physical system is no longer equal to the demands."

Both drugs, Dr. Le Blanc and his colleagues agree, can—and often do—cause permanent insanity and death.

"Among white men, the mental and physical 'reactions' to the drugs' after-effects are almost always serious, often fatal," they declare.

Until about 18 months ago, neither of the narcotics was any problem outside Dahomey itself. Made by the witch everyone else? It was senseless.

KILLER OF JERUSALEM

For Boris now took to buttonholing passengers, when they weren't quick enough to avoid him, and catechizing them in their faith He held the steward, who unfortunately had to be polite to passengers, for more than two full hours, while he read him aloud the entire book of Revelations

"I was scared," the steward afterwards reported to the captain "It was the way he spoke ... almost as if I were personally responsible for all the sin in the world You'd have thought I was the anti-Christ, himself At one point I even thought he would knock me down."

The Captain, though he couldn't possibly accept a crewman's accusation–and only an impression at that–against a paying passenger, still was relieved when the ship finally pulled into Jaffa Harbor and Boris disembarked. So too, was everyone else

"A most peculiar bird," was the general summary "Well, he's one character who ought to find peace in the Holy Land. Nobody'll mind his Bible-quoting antics here"

Boris Steglovich, on the other hand, was totally oblivious to the impression he had made His first sensation on landing, was one of glorious happiness and exhilaration He was here, in the Holy Land at last! He was about to fulfill his life's ambition, to walk in the steps of his Saviour, to wash away his sins, and the sins of the entire world, in soul-saving prayer

Not too much is reported about the activities of Boris Steglovich during the next sixty or seventy days We know that he made the normal penitent's tour of the holy area His name is signed in the visitors' books of several of the most famous religious sites Thus we can follow him to Bethlehem, to Nazareth and finally to Jerusalem And there, he finally re-emerges from his temporary obscurity

JERUSALEM, BEFORE THE first World War was a drab, back-country wreck of an Arab city Under the rule of a Turkish governor, but far enough removed from the seat of government in Constantinople to be almost semi-independent, it merely existed from century to century The Turks and their crew of sycophants were interested strictly in income The major source for that was tourism

For drab, dirty or not, Jerusalem was still the Holy City to the three great world religions And every year, worshippers came by the FREE BOOK tells how these people—and hundreds of others—got started in this Big Money business. Send for your copy now.

Let me give you the same start I gave these men!

In one way the big earnings reported here might be called exceptional In another way there is nothing exceptional about them That's because any man who will follow instructions and is willing to work at his own Duraclean business should be able to do as well under similar conditions

Each of the men quoted here had talents and abilities different from those of all the rest But each had one thing in common—a desire to win personal independence in a business of his own And each man took five identical steps to reach his goal

1 Each one read an announcement such as you are reading now 2 He wrote for complete information 3 He read the literature we sent him 4 He gained new confidence in himself and the belief that he could succeed with Duraclean 5 He accepted our offer to help him get started Later he wrote to tell us about his success

In each case remember the first step was to write to Duraclean for information If you would like to own a business of your own why don't you do as these men did—right now

When I hear from you I will send you facts about the Duraclean Franchise that will open your eyes. You will see why a Franchise business such as ours makes success for the individual the rule rather than the exception

The Duraclean home service business has been tried and tested The market for Duraclean Service is tremendous—and growing The methods that lead to success have been clearly charted When an ambitious man follows these methods, success is the logical result

Some Franchise businesses require investments as high as $50,000 With ours you can get started for less than a $1000 and we finance the balance Monthly payments are so small that the profits on less than one day's service can cover your payment for the entire month. Even with this small investment and operating as a one man business, your potential is $250 00 a week net profit With two men working for you 35 hours a week you should gross a profit of $420 00 Allowing 20% for advertising and incidentals the net would amount to $336 00

The most important part of Duraclean home service is cleaning rugs carpets and upholstered furniture by a revolutionary modern process known as the "Absorption Method" You do the work right in the customer's premises No harsh scrubbing with motor driven brushes No soaking Instead an aerated foam loosens the dirt and holds it in suspension until removed A test conducted by an impartial laboratory showed that the modern Absorption Method removed twice as much dirt as was removed by old fashioned machine scrubbing

If you are tired of working for others or of jumping from one proposition to another—if you have a real yearning for independence in a business of your own—then send for "The Duraclean Route to Success" There is no obligation—no charge No salesmen will call to high pressure you Send for the book now Read it Then if you want to take the next step toward independence you can write to me and let me give you the same help I've given so many other successful men thousands to visit and to pray

While many of these tourists were sincere religious people of deep and lasting faith, quite a few surrendered to the weakness of the flesh They came with good intentions but a constant exposure to mental effort was too much for them They became bored and looked for entertainment and excitement The governors were only too delighted to serve them So, over the years, a steady trickle of women, alcohol, narcotics and other outward signs of the tourist trade swelled and grew into a mighty stream. Jerusalem if not a Sodom or Gomorrah, was definitely equipped to service the traffic in vice and venality

The sight of all this sensualism may have been disturbing to many, but as a rule, people with strong religious convictions ignore it, while those whose fervor was somewhat less than intense, succumb to it

That is, until Boris Steglovich arrived

To Boris, the picture of the Holy City was like a hot flash of horror. It sickened him It infuriated him. It drove him past the breaking point

"It was an evil, disgusting sight," he reported later, "the lewd women walking the streets their sensuous bodies vulgarly displayed in tight dresses, their leering, painted faces their total lack of modesty and gruesome display of wanton lust. When they paraded past me, it was all I could do to restrain myself from attacking them with my fists. From the very beginning I knew I had to destroy them They had no right to walk in the same city where stood the Church of the Holy Sepulchre the Mount of Olives and the Tomb of David"

But Boris was different from most of the others who were disgusted by the sight He determined to do something about it And, brought up in an atmosphere of revolution, weaned on stories of the 1878 Bulgarian revolution and the conspiracies and terror that preceded it, no step seemed too drastic

It took several days to prepare, but that didn't disturb him Once he had come to a decision, a strange calmness settled over him A monk, whom he had met some weeks before, ran into him again during this interval and remarked on the change "He was like a different man He was so friendly, so good-natured and so talkative that I began to wonder if I'd misjudged him"

Finally, Boris was ready. He would wait no longer On a dark, warm evening he set about putting his plan into effect

It was late as he moved carefully along a side street toward the heart of the old city He was dressed, like an Arab, in an old tarboush and keftan. He waited in the shadows by the city wall until the guard had passed, and then he hurried off, disappearing into the crowd, walking confidently, his hand resting on a knife concealed beneath the folds of his costume

The city was relaxing to its evening's entertainment Dirty-faced urchins ran shouting through the streets while robed men walked calmly along the cobblestones, ignoring them completely In the coffee houses, sullen-faced Arabs crouched like crows on rush-bottomed chairs, smoking narghiles, while little boys with painted eyes brought them sweet cakes and coffee in tiny brass jugs There was the constant tinkling of stringed instruments and the tap of drums, singing and laughing and muted wild screaming There were few lights And above all, the air was filled with the spicy smell of oil, olives, hides, perfume tobacco and the sweat of hundreds of people

Boris ignored it all. To him, the Arabs were hardly even there They were just people—perhaps different from those he knew, but still they were ordinary folks doing ordinary things They were heathen, but at least they weren't disgusting dirty and debauched

He went on till he reached a dark and narrow street, where he could wait unobserved for opportunity For he needed time He couldn't strike this early in the evening Yet, he didn't trust himself to mingle with the crowds along Ben Mahmoud Street.

Boris stayed where he was for nearly two hours. And all the time his heart was pounding with excitement as he dwelt in his mind on all the details of what he was about to do

Finally, he decided that the time was right. He made a last check, running his hands over the objects that were strapped about his body beneath his loose clothing He readied his knife in his hand, and moved out

BEN MAHMOUD STREET was the center of prostitution As Boris reached it, his ears were immediately assailed by the screaming laughing girls, shouting at the passers-by, calling out in detail the extent of their wares, and striking up a bargaining banter anytime anyone seemed interested The street was swarming with them as well as a horde of men, Arab and European alike hurling insults at the girls sitting in the windows or exchanging lewd remarks with them In shrill voices the girls answered in kind promising every sort of debauchery if only the man would walk up and visit them

Boris stopped beneath one house to watch the procedure Now that he was there, ready to operate he was trembling with excitement as his nostrils flared with anticipation

He spotted one girl on the second floor of a small brothel She was sitting in her window but she was less vociferous than the rest It was almost as if she regretted her choice of profession. Boris made his decision

Without speaking, he waved The girl's face immediately broke into a professional smile and she waved back He nodded, indicating that he would visit her and she called down the number of her room

Boris climbed the stairs slowly The excitement was bubbling inside him so much that he was finding difficulty in breathing When he finally reached the second landing, the girl was waiting for him She held a flimsy wrap about her body, but it was so loose and so thin that it showed the shadowy valley of her breasts She beckoned and Boris followed her into her room

Once inside he looked around with an avid interest The room was sparsely furnished only a rickety wooden table and a low straw-mattressed couch breaking the monotony of the bare floor The girl stepped close and rubbed her body against him

"You pay now?" she asked her voice smiling while her eyes fixed themselves on him greedily

Boris pulled out some crumpled dirty bills and handed them to her She took them happily turned and deposited them in an old tin box on the table Then, with a quick, deft movement, she slipped off the wrapper and stood naked before him

'You like me?" she asked softly turning this way and that, giving him a full and wantonly expressive view of her charms

Boris began to sweat She was lovely 'A young and fully developed beauty,' he described her later, with skin like milk and dark-tipped breasts that seemed to point at me like two strong magnets When she ran her hands down over her stomach toward her thighs the room went red before my eyes and I thought that I might die for want of her"

The girl moved toward the bed and motioned him to follow Boris nervously licked his lips For a second he hesitated as he struggled with temptation But then with a tremendous effort of will he gained control over his throbbing senses He swore under his breath and drawing his knife, he leaped at the girl, pinning her down across the bed under the weight of his heavy body

He admitted later that he was strongly tempted to kill her there and then 'But I couldn't. She was so beautiful and so young Besides

I needed her alive for my plan. I had to have a witness, someone to testify that what happened was not an accident. Fear was my weapon. Fear would multiply my revenge into terror. And it worked out exactly as I had planned."

Boris held the knife against the girl's throat while he bound and gagged her. Then, getting up, he removed his kaftan. He heard the girl gurgle with fear as she saw what he was carrying.

For wrapped about Boris's body with surgical adhesive tape were six bottles of gasoline and a small clock bomb.

Carefully, and without the slightest show of emotion, Boris sprayed the walls, floor and furniture of the room with gasoline, dropped each bottle on the floor as he emptied it. Then he placed the bomb in the far corner and set the mechanism. "I figured five minutes," he explained, "to give me ample time to leave before the explosion."

PICKING UP THE GIRL, he carried her to the doorway and waited. He couldn't afford to be too quick. He knew that this would be his only chance and he didn't want to ruin it with haste.

He stood there for 3½ minutes. Then, backing through the door, he lit a match and tossed it against the gas-soaked wall. In seconds, the room was a blazing inferno.

Dragging the girl after him, he dashed madly down the stairs and into the street. In the doorway, he clubbed her and dashed for the shelter of another building nearby, as she fell.

As he reached it, the explosion rocked the street. The second story seemed to blow outward in one vast sheet of flame. Sparks were everywhere. The fire leaped across the narrow street and spread over the buildings there. The houses on either side of the bombed brothel were both burning fiercely.

Boris was thrown off his feet by the impact. He was bruised and scratched, but he hardly noticed it. He was grinning broadly, and every few seconds his mouth would open in guttural guffaws of insane glee. This was what he had been waiting for.

People were rushing from everywhere, from the houses, from the brothels, from the taverns, from the neighboring streets. But none of them were able to do a thing to cope with the blaze.

Boris watched a man bend down and pick up the unconscious prostitute. As the man carried the naked girl out of danger, he sighed with relief, and then, turning, he melted away into the darkness.

Boris Sieglovich might have gotten away with his action complete-

An extraordinary opportunity to own this handsome
STEREO COMPONENT MUSIC SYSTEM for only $14.95 plus mailing and handling
Our catalog price $69.95

- Solid State Amplifier
- 4-Speed BSR Automatic Changer that plays all records at all speeds
- Two Airflo V Speakers 10¾" x 8" x 6"
- Transparent Dust Cover
- Stereo Headphone Jack

YES, IT'S TRUE! You can actually own this complete Columbia Component System for only $14.95! And what a superb music system it is ... providing clear, brilliant stereo sound ... quality-engineered to combine all the features and fidelity of larger, more expensive units selling for as much as $150. Beautifully designed and compact enough to fit easily on a desk, a table top or a shelf — in any room!

Our catalog price for the System is $69.95 — yet you may take it for only $14.95 when you join the Columbia Record Club and buy three records now at the regular Club price of only $4.98 each. Your only additional obligation as a member will be to purchase just twelve more records during the coming two years ... records you'd probably buy anyway.

AS A MEMBER you will receive, every four weeks, a copy of the Club's entertaining music magazine ... listing up to 300 records from every field of music. If you do not want any record in any month — just tell us so by returning the selection card by the date specified ... or use the card to order any of the records offered. If you want only the regular selection for your musical interest, do nothing — it will be shipped automatically. And from time to time we will offer some special albums, which you may reject by returning the special dated form provided — or accept by doing nothing.

YOUR OWN CHARGE ACCOUNT! Upon enrollment, we will open a charge account in your name. You pay for records only after you have received them and enjoyed them. The records you want will be mailed and billed to you at the regular Club price of $4.98 (Classical and occasional special albums somewhat higher) plus a mailing and handling charge.

FREE RECORDS! Once you've completed your enrollment agreement, you'll get a record free (only 25¢ for mailing and handling) for every additional record you buy thereafter. That's almost a 50% discount on all the records you want for as long as you want!

START ENJOYING ALL THE EXCITEMENT of listening to your favorite music on your Columbia Component System. Fill in the coupon now and mail it with your check or money order for only $14.95. Your Component System and the three stereo records of your choice will be sent to you promptly (along with a bill to cover mailing and handling charges and your first three records). Don't delay — the number of systems manufactured for this offer is limited — send for yours today!

ly, if he had only kept quiet. No one had connected him with the fire. In fact, no one suspected that a European had caused the destruction of the red-light district. The authorities were looking for an Arab. For Boris had said so little in the darkness of her bedroom that the prostitute had been fooled by his disguise.

As time passed without any solution of the crime, the terror that Boris had desired began to work. The prostitutes were scared. Each one feared that she might be the maniac's next victim. Brothel-owners lived in dread that their property might also be slated for destruction. Panic spread like a disease, swiftly and surely.

But Boris had to talk. He was proud of what he had accomplished and wanted to hear the praise of others. He felt sure that every man of religious persuasion would be delighted by the story of his daring deed.

It was a full month later that he made his announcement. He was back in Jaffa then, just boarding the steamer that was to take him back to Bulgaria.

But instead of giving him praise, his audience heard the story in shocked horror. This wasn't religion. This was devilish murder, fiendish and wanton destruction.

As the other Europeans backed away from the madman, Boris suddenly gave out. He sank to the deck sobbing. He had failed. There was no cleanliness, no thanksgiving. He, who had done so much, in his own eyes, to remove the evil from the Holy City, was being abandoned, despised and disgraced. He felt he had nothing more to fight for.

He didn't resist at all, when they came to take him away. Even before the ship sailed from Jaffa, Boris Steglovich was in a Turkish jail.

The Bulgarian consul, and the representative of the Orthodox Church tried to get mercy for Boris. Insanity was claimed and there were several doctors ready to testify to that in his behalf.

But in pre-World War I Turkey, there was little place for any sort of mercy. He was found guilty and sentenced to death.

On December 1, 1912, just a little more than three weeks before Christmas, Boris Steglovich was taken before the headsman and decapitated. His head was placed upon the gate of Jaffa fortress. It was displayed there until nightfall. And all during the day, the prostitutes of Palestine came from miles around, from every city in the country, to pelt the lifeless face with rotten fruit. Their eternal hatred was his only victory. ● to fear than I do from the jungle sons of the Mayans.

FORTUNE IN GOLD

I suppose the treasure could be gotten out. A company of men to hold down the Indains—or slaughter them, while the treasure is lifted, might do the trick.

And as for any one else—why Mexico would never permit a couple hundred armed men to go parading freely through the countryside

So there it sits . . . the treasure of Maximilian And for all I care there it can sit till hell freezes over

I've had all I can take Anybody else who wants it had better help themselves But I warn you—go prepared For the odds are a hundred to one that you're not going to come back Good luck ●

MOB KEEPS ITS VICE

"I'm no dope," she told an interviewer "I've got eyes and ears haven't I? And you'd have to be deaf and blind not to know what was going on Why some nights I've actually seen girls turning a trick right in one of the back booths"

She knew but she did nothing to get out

"Then one afternoon when I came to work," she continued "the manager called me inside and told me I was going out on the floor to hustle that night I told him I didn't want to He slammed me a couple of times No you couldn't call it a real working over though I've seen that kind of stuff Just enough to show me he meant business I wanted to run out of there but he had this big character of his sitting at a table by the door I knew I'd never get away unless I did as he told me So," she shrugged eloquently, "I went to work"

"Why didn't you go to the police later on when you got through?" she was asked

"What was the use," she answered "They kept me locked up in there for a week And by that time—well I couldn't have changed things could I After more than a hundred Johns what was left for me I knew the score"

Another girl tells this story

"I was modeling in LA at the time Things weren't so good So I took a few jobs in a slob studio You know—where guys come to shoot nude models Only most of them don't even have a camera They walk around with their tongues hanging out looking at the girls and they come and paw you over They call it arranging poses but who are they kidding with their little box cameras

"One night after a session the boss showed me this photo It was a composite. They'd combined my face with somebody else's body. The things that were going on in that photo? I've been hustling for ten years and I still can't believe it. It was a good job though. The studio man who made it was a real pro. They told me they'd send copies to my folks back home and to other people I knew.

"They told me that there were guys who came up who wanted to do more than look and touch. So, I began taking on an occasional job. It wasn't much at first, so I didn't really mind But after maybe six months the studio boss told me he'd sold my contract I asked him what contract He just grinned

"There was another character in there with him a tough looking ape You're working for him now, the boss announced And that was that They put me to work in a ten dollar house and from there—well there's not much of a story Like I said it's been a good ten years now"

There are hundreds of stories similar to these Variations? Sure No two girls have exactly the same experience Waitresses models, singers strippers bit actresses maids or what have you All of them have one thing in common They get involved just a little And then suddenly, without warning, they're in the game for keeps all the way, without retreat

A small "act" is booked out in the sticks They run into "trouble" regularly. Cash seems to be getting low Then the producer suggests that maybe if the girls are "nice to the manager" things might ease up There's always some girl who falls for that one And after a while before she knows where she is she finds herself being "nice" to a whole succession of men Until she discovers that the "managers," booking agents, "finance guys" etc are nothing more than Johns who have been paying for the privilege. But by then the girl is fully branded as a prostitute There are all sorts of damning evidence to keep her in line And another girl has joined the throng of the vice profession

Another gimmick that's used especially where inexperienced actresses are concerned is a switch on the casting couch routine If a girl won't lie down why there's no job for her If she does she's told to come back the next day and pick up her part But the next morning when she appears she's treated to an unexpected show. It seems that there was a hidden camera in Mr Producer's office recording the entire scene—complete with dialogue The overnight delay was to permit film processing The girl is informed that that was her part She is forthwith paid and told the movie is to be distributed nationally

Before the shock has worn off, she is either conned or beaten into going to work as a full fledged prostitute often on the promise that if she works out the cost of the film they'll let her off the hook. Of course they don't. And anyway, by that time she's a confirmed vice cookie.

EVERY ONCE IN a while, the pigeon fails to react as expected. And that's usually when the boys get mean.

Mary K., a singer in a small southern club and roadhouse, refused to go along even after she was beaten. But that never discouraged the crew that was recruiting her.

"When they saw that I meant what I said and that they could have beaten me to death without my giving in, they changed tactics. They tied me down and had me gang raped. They kept me a prisoner for more than a month, tied up. They sold the rape privelege to anyone who'd pay—and brother, there seemed to be no end to the guys who go for that sort of thing. And some got in some extra kicks of their own invention that I don't even want to remember. Finally, after forty-two days, I broke down and agreed to hustle. Even then they didn't trust me. For the next few months I was put to work in a house where I was watched night and day. I guess they finally decided I was OK, because they transferred me to another place and there I could come and go as I pleased. By then it didn't matter. Nothing mattered, really. After all that, nobody living could care about anything anymore.

"At that, I wasn't as badly off as some other girls. One girl I met in the house, the one I was prisoner in, was a junkie. They'd made her one, keeping her locked up for two weeks, giving her shots until she was hooked solid. She had to hustle to pay for the junk. At least I'm still human."

Here and there one runs across an occasional girl who is literally trapped into the business. These girls are not playing around the edges. Some of them have no idea at all of what's going on and would have run if they had known.

Penny T. had the bad luck to pick a part-time hustler as a roommate. I guess she and the guy who was handling her decided that Penny was the kind of girl they were looking for.

One night they told her what they had decided. Penny was horrified. Her roommate just laughed at her and told her that she'd better agree or they'd have her arrested.

When she refused to believe them, the roommate went down to the street and returned with a vice cop. The officer, a crooked devil and a thorough disgrace to his badge and uniform, was evidently working with the pair. He told Penny she was under arrest for prostitution and promptly produced a five dollar bill in this exclusive book!

"THE DEADLIEST MAN ALIVE"

Bringing to you these forbidden and secret fighting arts is the Supreme Grand Master of all the fighting arts — Count Dante who won the World Overall Fighting Arts championship (Master & Expert Divisions) after defeating the top Judo, Boxing, Wrestling, Karate, Gung Fu, Aikido, etc. masters in 'Death Matches.' On Aug. 1, 1967 the World Federation of Fighting Arts crowned the Count — "The World's Deadliest Fighting Master."

WORLD'S DEADLIEST

THIS BOOK CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE!

The FORBIDDEN and SECRET training methods of the BLACK DRAGON FIGHTING SOCIETY has never before been available to anyone outside of the Society. Recent attempts for regular publication and public exposure have been rejected as the contents were considered HORRIFYINGLY DANGEROUS and BRUTALLY VICIOUS.

Yes, this is the DEADLIEST and most TERRIFYING fighting art known to man — and WITHOUT EQUAL. Its MAIMING, MUTILATING, DISFIGURING, PARALYZING and CRIPPLING techniques are known by only a few people in the world. An expert at DIM MAK could easily kill many Judo, Karate, Aikido and Gung Fu experts at one time with only finger tip pressure using his murderous POISON HAND WEAPONS. Instructing you step by step thru each move in this manual is none other than COUNT DANTE — THE DEADLIEST MAN WHO EVER LIVED.

BLACK DRAGON FIGHTING SOCIETY

The BLACK DRAGON FIGHTING SOCIETY is the WORLD'S DEADLIEST FIGHTING ORGANIZATION which has, as of date, a closed membership. The fighting secrets of the DREADED CHI HERE HONG SOCIETY, the greatest and most vicious counterpart of the Mafia. Its members who are the world's top Martial Arts masters [illegible] their own fighting arts from the most SECRET and FORBIDDEN experts of the DEADLY Chinese fighting arts of GUNG FU, TAI CHI CHUAN, SHAOLIN, KEMPO, HSING-I, PA KUA, SHAOLIN BOXING and DIM MAK.

Until recently this forbidden training secrets of the Society have been closely guarded by the members who were aware of the secret and [illegible] the [illegible] ceremony of Blood Greeting of the oath of secrecy meant death by torture to the offender.

Now for the first time these FORBIDDEN SECRETS OF TERROR can be shared with you.

BREAK A BRICK

Included in this manual is a GUARANTEED method of brick and board breaking enabling anyone to break a brick or board after only minutes of training. THIS IS NO EXAGGERATION. THERE IS NO TRICK OR GIMMICK. There is nothing to be [illegible] the [illegible] or [illegible] hand [illegible] solid bricks [illegible] boards [illegible] the same method that [illegible] famous Karate Masters use.

POISON HAND

[illegible] the ravaging ripping, tearing, slashing, gouging and crushing techniques which comprise the POISON HAND ARSENAL are used to attack by striking, tearing or pressing the nerve centers, pressure points, major blood vessels and vital organs of the body. You will learn the [illegible] 77 POISON HAND techniques of ancient China in action photographs showing them in application. These are not photos of drawings but actual photos of COUNT DANTE applying these terrifying techniques which are meant to maim, disfigure, cripple or kill and have been used by [illegible] to MURDER.

[illegible] GUARANTEE

We cannot guarantee to make you a Fighting Arts Master or even an expert as this is up to you, but we can make a GOOD GUARANTEE that this book is DEADLIER than any other book, manual or course ever printed anywhere at any cost and that it may be [illegible] before [illegible] for past publication due to its extremely DANGEROUS nature. We also guarantee that the WORLD'S DEADLIEST FIGHTING SECRETS [illegible] the most SECRET and FORBIDDEN attack and defense methods ever devised by man and that the DIM MAK and POISON HAND techniques are completely authentic and the WORLD'S DEADLIEST FIGHTING FORMS.

MacARTHUR

French city was being liberated—that the Germans were being pushed out of France.

But this time it was different. The Germans were on their knees. Thus it became a matter of national honor for the French to avenge that rankling defeat of forty-eight years before. The glory of France demanded that French troops—not Americans—capture Sedan.

That part was very, very bad!

What could they do about it? The Commander in Chief Marshal Ferdinand Foch was a Frenchman. He understood only too well the importance of morale to victory. But at the same time he was a soldier. No commander in his right mind would stop a successful attack in mid-stream just to salve wounded pride.

Nevertheless he was persuaded to discuss the matter with the Americans. He found a sympathetic listener in the American commander, John "Black Jack" Pershing.

"Fine," said the tough old general. "If the French can take the city they're welcome to it! I won't stop my boys but I'm perfectly willing to have the French cross the American Army boundary, pass through our units and take over the drive. I'll issue the necessary orders."

At this point, it's well to stop a moment and look at the set-up.

To the west were the Frenchmen. Next to them, bordering them in fact, was the American 2nd (Indian Head) Division. To their right was the 42nd (Rainbow) Division, the 77th (Statue of Liberty), the 1st (Red One) and the 89th.

The original idea of the Pershing command was to permit the French to cross in front of the 2nd Division and then into Sedan. The 2nd was the unit that was originally supposed to take the town.

That's all there was to it—just the one small change.

PERSHING CALLED General Liggett, CG of the First Army, to relay the news. "In the attack toward Sedan," said Black Jack, "the French may cross your boundary. In this case the boundary may be ignored."

The fat was in the fire. Naturally for the implementation of the order it passed through channels. Of course with every channel the order grew more and more garbled and more senseless.

General Liggett roared for his Chief of Staff—enter General Hugh A. Drum. Liggett repeated the order from Pershing. "See that it's carried out."

Drum, with military precision, saluted, retired and proceeded to follow that good old army tradition of passing the buck. The receiver? First Army G-3 (Plans), Colonel George Catlett Marshall.

History does not disclose who actually wrote the order—but it's a cinch that the army being what it is the job finally ended up in the hands of an obscure shavetail (with the actual order being cut and run off by an NCO). At any rate, Marshall (and he deserves credit for it) took the rap officially. The order as he presented it to Drum

PROVEN IN THE LABS — PROVEN ON THE ROAD — PROVEN ON THE INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY — and finally released to the public!

[illegible] Indianapolis — proven by [illegible] laboratories used by Ford, General Motors and Chrysler [illegible] proven by the world's largest automobile fleet owners! An exciting new scientific breakthrough [illegible] no matter what kind of car you [illegible] 300 miles of driving [illegible] week, month after month [illegible] 365 days of the year [illegible] and save up to 500 gallons of gas each year!

NOW! 30 DAYS OF DRIVING ON A SINGLE TANK OF GAS!

– even more startling, now save up to $16 a month, up to 50 gallons of gas each month, without changing a single part on your car!

Laboratory reports [illegible] PLUS road tests conducted in Indianapolis proving grounds reveal you may now [illegible] as much as 27 miles of driving from each gallon of gas [illegible] save up to 50 gallons of gas each month [illegible] save up to $200 on your car each year!

Six months ago, for perhaps the first time in history, the United States Government [illegible] an invention that has been classified ILLEGAL! Sound strange? [illegible] here's why. I'm sure you're familiar with the [illegible] gasoline-economy [illegible] by all the major [illegible]. Well, do you know that the [illegible] new invention [illegible] actually banned from these races because it is TOO EFFECTIVE. Do you know that because this invention saves so much gasoline [illegible] it is actually ILLEGAL for a test-driver [illegible]. And do you know [illegible] boosts gasoline mileage [illegible] miles per gallon [illegible]. It has actually been OUTLAWED in every recognized [illegible] economy [illegible] because the officials who conduct these tests were forced to rule that it gives all cars that have it AN UNFAIR ADVANTAGE.

In other words, if you are a person [illegible] cross-country economy [illegible] YOU JUST WON'T BE ALLOWED TO USE THIS NEW INVENTION. SORRY, BUT IT'S SIMPLY ILLEGAL. BUT — if you are a person who is not interested in setting any records [illegible] who is only interested in getting more miles per gallon than you ever dreamed possible — and doing it the very same way [illegible] America's leading [illegible] what you are about to read is perhaps the most [illegible] news in [illegible] history.

TEST DRIVERS REPORT UP TO 11 MORE MILES PER GALLON—

The name of this great new invention is the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER [illegible]

CUTS GASOLINE COSTS TO AS LITTLE AS 1¢ A MILE

1. When the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER was first tested by the [illegible] research laboratories used by Ford, General Motors and Chrysler [illegible] an staggering increase of up to 68 per cent! [illegible] it actually lowered gasoline costs to as little as ONE CENT A MILE.

2. When tests were made by the world's leading auto rental system with this [illegible] money saving invention [illegible] on such world famous proving grounds as the Indianapolis Speedway [illegible] the test-drivers of these vehicles were absolutely amazed to see big 8 cylinder sedans get better gas-mileage than small European economy cars!

3. When [illegible] the nation's largest [illegible] fleets tested this great new invention to determine just how much gas it would save them [illegible] within 30 days they reported savings of not hundreds but thousands of gallons of gas [illegible]

UP TO 300 MILES OF DRIVING FROM A SINGLE TANK OF GAS

Yet from [illegible] by some of the world's most famous drivers [illegible] reports of cars that drive for hundreds and hundreds of miles ON A SINGLE TANK OF GAS. Reports of test cars from Ford, General Motors, Chrysler that get more miles per gallon today than when they were brand new. Reports of big luxury sedans that weigh 2½ times more than small European cars [illegible] yet get better mileage, better performance and huge dollar savings thanks to this new miracle invention.

BEST PROOF OF ALL!

World's Leading Rent-A-Car Company Road Tests Amazing New Invention For 3 Solid Months. Then Orders Fleet of Cars IMMEDIATELY EQUIPPED!

They report "Savings of up to 54 gallons a month per car"

Yes, from one of the nation's largest automobile fleet owners comes the most dramatic proof of all [illegible] that spends more money on gasoline in one weekend than the average person spends in a lifetime [illegible] they tested this incredible new invention [illegible] BOOSTED GASOLINE MILEAGE A WHOPPING 32% ON ALL CARS TESTED. Wouldn't you like to save up to $200 a year on your car? For [illegible]

IF IT WORKS SUCH MILEAGE MIRACLES, HOW COME THE CAR MANUFACTURERS HAVEN'T INSTALLED THIS TYPE UNIT IN THEIR CARS? — THE ANSWER IS THAT TWO ALREADY HAVE!

By now you are probably wondering just what is the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER [illegible] and how does it work? Well, to make a long story short [illegible] If you were to look under the hood of one of those $20,000 European luxury cars like the Maserati or the Aston-Martin, you would see [illegible] specially designed to extract more burning power, more energy from each gallon of gasoline. This remarkable booster-unit is what gives these cars such magnificent performance [illegible] such TOTAL POWER [illegible] such increased engine efficiency.

And this is precisely what the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER is designed to do [illegible] enable your engine to extract more piston-driving power, more raw burning energy and more gasoline economy.

LOOK HOW EASY IT IS!

All you do is simply attach the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER to your [illegible] It's a [illegible] instrument with a [illegible] each [illegible] There are no special adjustments for you to make. They've already been made for you at the factory. You simply screw it into [illegible] and that's it. In fact, it's so easy [illegible] install it [illegible] easy picture directions accompany each unit. Total installation time: 3 to 5 minutes. Total savings in gas: up to $200 a year!

TEST CAR 101
INDIANAPOLIS PROVING GROUNDS

HERE IT IS IN ACTION! The amazing G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER [illegible] Indianapolis Speedway [illegible] tests that PROVE you can now [illegible] up to $200 in gasoline [illegible] the next 12 months [illegible] Indianapolis test driver.

ONLY [illegible] instead of costing $100 to $250 like the European boosters [illegible] the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER costs but a mere fraction. That's because after years of intensive research [illegible] have finally found a way to [illegible] these booster units [illegible] reduce the number of parts [illegible] make them available at a price so low it is almost too ridiculous to mention. Why do you realize what this means to you if you [illegible] determined to save yourself up to $16 a month on your gas bills [illegible] up to 50 gallons of gas each month [illegible] up to $200 a year on wasted gas [illegible]

INSTALLS IN MINUTES. PAYS FOR ITSELF IN AS LITTLE AS 15 DAYS!

It means that no matter what kind of car you now have [illegible] no matter how old that car may be [illegible] no matter how many miles [illegible] here at last is the [illegible] you've long dreamed about [illegible] Because from this day on you too can now save up to 500 gallons of gas each and every year. NOW you too can drive for weeks and weeks [illegible] Now you too [illegible] single tank of gas [illegible] from New York to Chicago [illegible] tankfuls. In other words, perform mileage miracles that only yesterday you thought were impossible.

So if you too want to achieve the same wondrous results as America's biggest automotive fleet owners, by Indianapolis test-drivers and by research scientists at the very same testing laboratories used by Ford, Chrysler and General Motors, then take advantage of this special Free-Trial introductory offer. Remember, all you risk is the few minutes it takes to fill out the special reservation coupon below and you have a lifetime of driving convenience and economy to gain.

THIS OFFER EXPIRES IN 14 DAYS — YOU MUST ACT NOW!

Now the price of the G. T. ENERGY CHAMBER in this special introductory offer is not the 15 to 20 dollars you might expect [illegible] but only $5.95. Why, you'll save up to 10 times that amount in gasoline savings in [illegible] not to mention the hundreds of gallons of gasoline and hundreds of dollars in money you save year after year.

However, due to the enormous demands of trucking companies, successful companies, taxicab fleets and other large users, only a limited number of G. T. ENERGY CHAMBERS can possibly be [illegible] orders. Therefore [illegible] take advantage of this [illegible] offer [illegible] coupon [illegible] today.

for signature, was addressed not only to I Corps and 2nd Division, but to V Corps, 1st and 89th Divisions as well.

The order stated that Sedan was the target city and ended with the phrase "Boundaries will not be considered binding."

Drum glanced at it, signed it, and that was that. For neither Drum, nor Marshall, nor anyone else from that moment on ever stopped to consider that Pershing had meant ARMY BOUNDARIES ONLY!

To the Commanding General of V Corps, General Summerall, the order meant only one thing. He had been assigned the mission of capturing Sedan and boundaries were not to be considered binding. The general, a man of action, went personally to the headquarters of the 1st Division and verbally ordered General Parker, commander of the 1st to take Sedan, take it fast, and everything else be damned!

There was only one way for the 1st to get there, to pass right across the front of the 77th and 42nd Divisions, block off the 2nd Division and then take the city!

The only comment General Parker is reputed to have made is, "I guess the big brass know what they're doing!"

And Parker was an experienced Combat Commander!

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, as they say, things were rapidly falling to pieces. The chain had been pulled and the water was rising—fast. The 42nd Division had not been let in on the big secret. Suddenly, out of the night, totally unknown units were spearing into the 42nd's positions. They ignored all challenges. When fired upon, they fired back. To General Menoher, the commander, and Brig. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, his Chief of Staff, a new, tough, major battle was shaping up. From where they sat, it looked like a brand new German attack.

While Menoher frantically called Corps and Army, MacArthur rushed back toward the front to take over command of the 84th Brigade (his battle station). He arrived there just in time to get the message that the 168th Iowa Inf. was engaged in a fierce artillery and machine gun duel with an unknown unit that had come up from nowhere to hit it on the flank.

Luckily for our side, which was just about to start battling itself to death, Menoher managed to reach MacArthur and tell him the story. In fact, the 42nd had just received word from the 1st that Big Red One was coming through!

To the frantic MacArthur, everything was suddenly clear. Equally clear was his duty. A telephone message would probably become garbled.

So throwing on an overcoat, a muffler and his famous sloppy hat, Douglas MacArthur, Brigadier General U.S. Army, ran out into the rainy night to personally separate the fighting units. He was accompanied on his mission by Lt. Col. Walter B. Wolfe, Brigade Chief of Staff.

ALL THROUGH THE NIGHT and the predawn of November 6th, ignoring danger, shot, shell, ignorance and misunderstandings, he labored to bring order out of chaos. Explaining the situation to each and every unit, he endeavored to separate fighting units—to keep Americans from slaughtering Americans. One at a time, he took companies "by the hand" and led them apart.

By dawn, exhausted, covered with mud, and angrier than he had ever been in his life, he started back to his command post. He had succeeded in the impossible. At least, he thought, not too many Americans had been killed.

But he was only one man. No matter how brave, how dedicated or how selfless—he couldn't be everywhere at once. As far as his headquarters was concerned MacArthur had been away too long.

Up along the road, straight toward the 84th Brigade's command post, came a scouting patrol of 1st Division infantrymen. Their mission: to bring back prisoners.

On the same road, from the opposite direction, came a tall man in a fur-collared coat and a plain uniform. He wore a muffler around his neck and a sloppy, floppy hat. (This was before the men of the Air Force made this hat style popular). He was covered from head to foot with mud, and in his state of near-exhaustion he looked more like a refugee from a defeated army than an American brigade commander.

The doughfeet dropped out of sight, into the bushes. One of them brought his rifle barrel into position, squinted through his sights, and zeroed in on the approaching figure.

"Sarge, should I knock him off?" He spat reflectively. "There may be a lot of other krautheads around."

"Hold it," ordered the sergeant. "We'll take him prisoner. He may be able to tell us a lot. We're supposed to bring back prisoners."

"Hell, he doesn't look as if he knows where he's at," commented another rifleman. "Let's shoot the bastard and go look for some chow. Look at that hat! That's a krauthead for sure."

"We'll take him in," the sergeant repeated firmly. "That's an order!"

MacArthur, blissfully unaware of what was transpiring, plodded on toward his command post, now only yards away. He was thinking, most probably, of a hot cup of coffee, some clean dry clothes and possibly a bit of a nap. Step by step, he narrowed the gap between himself and the 1st Division patrol. He moved up to them, abreast of them.

Two hunks of solid American beef rose up like wraiths from the roadside bushes and hurled themselves on MacArthur's back. Down went the general. Down went the tacklers. When they finished rolling around, there was Douglas MacArthur, lying on the ground with half a dozen rifles pointing straight at him.

He started to sputter in rage.

"Quiet, krauthead! Ruhig, or I'll lay this gunbutt on your thick skull!" The threat was quite specific—there was no possibility of misinterpreting the grim threat in the doughfeet's eyes and faces.

"What do you men think you're doing?" shouted MacArthur. "Have you gone mad? I'm General MacArthur of the Rainbow Division!"

"Sure you are," mocked one of the doughboys, "and I'm the Crown Prince!"

"You men had better stop and think of what you're doing," roared the general. "Take me to my headquarters that house over there. They'll identify me for you, if you're too stupid to see for yourselves!"

"Smart one aren't you," answered another rifleman. "Just like that 'step into my parlor!' Walk into that building where his buddies can get us. Say, when we get back we'll better report that house. Division'll want to lay down some artillery on it."

"WE OUGHT TO SHOOT him," interrupted another soldier. "Look at him, he's wearing an American uniform—at least part of one. That makes him a spy! There's too many of those damn Heinies posing as Americans already — let's shoot this one for a lesson!"

"He speaks good English, too," said the first rifleman. "But I guess that's why they picked him to be a spy in the first place. Whattaya say, Sarge? Can we shoot him?"

"Nope. We're taking him in," said the non com. "Now let's get going before his buddies start running to the rescue. Ha! Calls himself a general. They'll like this baby at headquarters." He turned to MacArthur. "On your feet, General Krauthead. Forward march! Eins, Zwei, Drei, Vier!"

MacArthur got to his feet so choked with anger that he could hardly talk. He turned toward the sergeant for one last protest.

The non com looked at him with icy calmness and said, "Listen you dirty kraut—one more word out of you and I'll split your skull myself. Get it? Now move!"

The general closed his mouth with a snap. He looked around and stared at his command post so near and yet so far. Then he gulped and started forward, only too conscious of the rifle muzzles pointing straight at his back.

It was a good mile or more to the 1st Division unit's bivouac area. MacArthur plodded along in silence. At least, he thought, there'll be someone with a little sense to talk to once I get there.

But he never had a chance. Back at company headquarters he was shoved unceremoniously into a truck together with a handful of real German prisoners. His demands to see the platoon officer or company commander were met by the sergeant's menacing words. "I told you to keep quiet, buster. Now are you going to do it or do I shove this gun butt down your gullet?"

The truck shook as the engine roared to life. The prisoners and their new guards, MPs, rolled off. The last words MacArthur heard as they left the platoon area were, "You know, I don't like that goddam kraut one bit. Maybe we shoulda shot him at that."

Thirty minutes later, he was in a POW cage.

One by one the prisoners were called in for an interview by 1st Division Intelligence. Bored MPs with alertly cradled guns watched over the proceedings.

Finally, the general's turn came. He marched in, faced the Divisional G-2 . . .
and exploded!

History has drawn a curtain of mercy around the exact words that passed between Douglas MacArthur and his interviewers. Perhaps it's just as well. For MacArthur was exhausted by a night of hell. Bruised, beaten, insulted —furious as much by his loss of dignity as by his close call with death—he had plenty to say all of it justified.

Needless to say, within seconds he was a free man. Apologies from the lowest headquarters officers right up to General Parker himself were offered in profusion. First Division headquarters suffered through a half hour of embarrassed laughter and very feeble jokes.

Finally, with a suitable escort and full honors, General MacArthur was escorted back to his own command post.

As the French say, "C'est la guerre!"

Oh yes, the French did finally take Sedan and assuage their honor.

But that hardly seems important in retrospect. The big question, still unanswered, remains:

What ever happened to the Sergeant???

to me that perhaps it is my diet that is responsible for my vigor. While I do not believe that, I will tell you what my diet is. My principal food is mutton, which I eat at least twice a day. I drink a large amount of milk, and flavor my food with all the herbs of the earth. My food is cooked in the open air over a clean fire. When I am in the city, the fire is made of coals or wood or charcoal. In the desert I always make my fire of dried camel's dung.

I live always in the open air. The blessed sun is my companion. I think I would feel ill, if I did not get at least six hours of sunlight a day. I practice my shooting at every occasion. And I keep my body scrupulously clean as is commanded by the Holy Koran.

MY BUSINESS, WHICH is trading, I carry out from one end of the year to the other, travelling widely across all the countries from the tip of Saudi Arabia to the mountains of Iran. I work hard, ride hard, and sleep excellently with the pure and dreamless rest of an honest man.

Of course, I make no pretense to maintaining as great a vigor and sexual power today as I owned, say fifteen years ago. I am reduced to only 18 women now, and even at that, it takes great strength to be able to keep all of them contented. In my middle age, before weakness descended on me, I would have despised my current performance as being worthy of only a most callow youth. I was well past my sixtieth year before the burden of keeping women in number equal to my age grew too great for me despite my life-long training.

One of the most important tasks in building and keeping a harem is in the selection of its occupants. For as it is said, only a fool will select his women as he would the sands of the desert Each woman is like a jewel And each has her perfections and her flaws So just as one selects an emerald to set off a pair of diamonds, or a pearl to complement a ruby that is how a wise man should pick and choose those earthbound houris whom Allah—may his name be everlastingly revered—has granted to us.

Variety is essential in all things in height, in shape, in age, in knowledge of the arts of love in complexion and in disposition A man must never forget that his moods are changing every hour

Thus for example, when I am tired, and my age seems to lie upon me like a burden, the sight of a young, lithesome sprite, curved like a million scimitars, dancing gaily before me, her body writhing with the contortions of youthful acrobatics can send my blood boiling

When I am rested when I look upon the world with the keenness of vision and understanding of my years, I yearn for a cool and comforting disposition that can blend itself to me in easy-going mellow style

When my bones are aching I look forward to the heavy, soft and fleshy charms of a well-built woman, in whose arms I can find comfort and ease, as well as flaming passion.

These may seem like obvious prerequisites but it takes thought and planning to achieve them In this, as in so many other things, I followed the advice of my father He told me at the beginning, when I first reached the stature and estate of manhood that love is a matter of all the senses of the brain as well as the body, of philosophy as well as instinct, of sight and sound, as well as of touch and taste

Love and its physical outlets are a matter of knowledge and learning, even more than they are of pleasant sensation. Any foolish youngster can achieve a modicum of satisfaction with any woman, whether she be the daughter of a sheikh, or a woman resident of a sordid house of joy To him, it is all one There is no meaning, only feeling

What is the value of maturity if it depends for its happiness on the ways of youth A man, to live fully must gain and grow in all things He must learn the perfection of love even as he learns the joys of adult freedom.

In that way he can prolong his activity far beyond the normal span allotted to the weaker more thoughtless men

I lived by that rule When I married for the first time, I took not merely one, but two women to my heart The first was a thing of beauty and delight I loved her above myself and I adore her still. The second, however, was an older woman, a widow, experienced in love and marriage, a woman who could give me more knowledge in one single week than I could have discovered for myself in years.

The second, may Allah bless her soul, for she has departed this earth some twenty years ago this Fast of Ramadan, gave me more than love and knowledge. She gave me understanding of women and their kind. She showed me the value of a humble mein. For, by her grace and willingness, not only I, but my younger wife, became quickly adept at the art of love. We learned all that she knew, and we taught ourselves more.

AND AS FAST AS we mastered our lessons, as fast as we reached the peak of our ability to move forward, I married other women, or took them to concubinage. In one instance, I even took into my house an old woman who was the mistress of an establishment of professional women. I let her act as teacher. When she was through, I believe that my harem knew more about their wifely duties, than any group of women anywhere on earth.

Even today, it would take practically a lifetime to re-live the variety of joys that are known to me and to my women. Is it any wonder, in view of this, that I find each new day a challenge and an adventure?

Having selected a harem, it is important next, to manage it correctly. Far too many men think that a collection of women will manage themselves. This is a prescription for a hell on earth. Women are no more capable of running a home, of thinking and planning for their own or their husband's happiness, than is a camel capable of herding sheep.

Women, left to their own devices will do nothing but eat and grow fat, demand comforts and personal decorations, gossip, argue and bicker all day and all night. I could think of no greater curse to place on my most hated enemy, than to wish him a life in the midst of an unmanaged harem. He would go mad.

Women must be kept busy with pre-assigned tasks, much like a company of horsemen. Some must see to the cleanliness of the compound. Others must arrange for meals, still others must prepare and mend the clothing, some must care for the younger children, and always, a few must be resting and studying for the regular appearance in the master's chamber.

She, who has been commanded to solace the lord and master of the household, must think of nothing else for a full day before such an appearance. She must have time to think out his every need and desire; she must be free to consult with the other women for the latest thoughts and forms of pleasure; she must study and learn the tricks and nuances of the great lovers of the past; and she must be able to observe her mate at all times, so that she may judge his mood exactly.

To take a woman straight from the midst of her household chores and expect her to change, like a magician's assistant, directly from drudge to lover, is to ask the impossible. Such a woman is neither prepared for her role, nor is she able to give her entire being over to thoughts of total pleasure.

To accomplish this, one woman, the wisest and ablest of all, must be set above the others as an absolute queen. It is not love that should dictate the choice of the mistress of the harem, but discretion. Love is for the boudoir; common sense and discipline is needed for the management of a home.

The harem queen must be supported in every decision. But still, she must be as a slave to her lord and master, knowing that his will, his choice among the women of his household, is to be prepared like an angel when his desire calls.

If the harem is well run, the man of the house need concern himself not at all with domestic arrangements. His days are free for business and his nights are free for love. He has but to think, and his very thoughts will be instantly obeyed.

IF A MAN CARRIES out these rules from his first flush of youth until the last years of his life, he need never fear sexual debility. There is no trouble that can disturb him.

Many of my friends have enjoyed the ecstacies of physical love right up to their last days on this earth. It is not unusual. Most of my friends live in this manner, and so too have the friends of my father, and of his father before him.

It is worry, soft life, poor food, a lack of sunlight, and a leaning toward monogamy that are at the root of all the troubles of mankind. The day that women were admitted to equality among the races of the western world, on that very day did the decline in masculine vigor begin. A man is born to be the ruler of his household. Once he abdicates that stature, even to the very slightest degree, his virility will begin to diminish.

I owe everything I am to my harem and to my way of life. I do not make any pretense of telling you, the rich, wise and powerful citizens of America how to conduct yourselves. But I do know that I would not follow the codes of your civilization myself.

I am eighty years old. I have a harem. Ask my women which they prefer. Let that be your answer. I am certain that none of them would exchange me, even at my age, for the strongest, youngest and richest man among you.

That is my way of life. So be it. May the face of Allah, the compassionate and all-knowing, smile upon you and your children, and give you peace. ●

Have you ever wished you could draw this well?

How do you know you couldn't?

If you like to draw you've probably tried your hand more than once at sketching scenes like the one above But chances are you've run into problems—like getting buildings to "recede into the background for example Or making water glisten the way it should And after trying unsuccessfully a number of times you may have decided that you just haven't got it — that you'd never make it as an artist

That decision could be a serious mistake For all you may need to get on the right track is some expert help a few pencil touches, a few words of advice from a skilled art instructor who can tell you exactly what you're doing wrong and show you exactly what you should do to correct it

Famous artists want to help you

Now a group of famous artists want to bring you this kind of help no matter where you live or what your schedule They've developed a way to teach you right at home the secrets of drawing and painting with real professional skill

Among the famous artists are Norman Rockwell Dong Kingman Bob Peak Fred Ludekens and a number of others. They've long known that there are talented people everywhere who could become and should become artists—but who don't do so because they can't overcome the drawing road blocks in their path Some of these people think it's a lack of talent that's holding them back Others realize they have talent but can't leave their homes or jobs to get the training they need to develop it

A practical answer to this problem

To help such people the famous artists formed the Famous Artists School Taking time off from their own careers, they poured everything they knew about drawing and painting into a priceless series of home study lessons. They illustrated the lessons with over 5 000 drawings And they devised a method of constructive criticism that is almost as personal as private tutoring

Each assignment you send to the Famous Artists School receives the individual attention of an instructor who is himself a working professional artist He actually draws or paints his suggestions for improvement and then writes you a friendly letter of specific advice and encouragement

This method of personalized training has helped hundreds of people who were once awkward amateurs to become polished professional full time and part time artists.

They went from "dabblers" to successful professionals

Take Mrs Nancy K Houston of Manchester Ga for example A few years ago she had absolutely no knowledge of how to develop my small latent talent " Today Mrs Houston sells portraits to people as far away as New York Texas and California Anthony Fona of New York City was a mail clerk "stuck in a low pay routine job Today he's an artist for an important printing firm doing exciting creative work And Mrs R G Des Ermas of Escondido Calif changed from a "nameless faceless dabbler in art to a recognized professional " Now she averages $1 500 a year from all the part time art work she has time for

Find out if you, too, have art talent. Send for our free test

To help you find out whether you too have the talent to develop professional skill in art the famous artists have created the fascinating Art Talent Test shown at right It is offered free and will be graded without charge by a member of the School's staff If you do well or can offer other evidence of art talent you may enroll for training But there is no obligation to do so For a free copy of the test and a brochure describing the School just fill out the coupon and mail it in an envelope today

doctoring gris-gris men who kept the method of manufacture a closely-guarded secret the drugs were used only in Kpo rituals It is doubtful if either of the compounds were ever used outside Dahomey before 1958

It was in the Spring of 1958 that Continental police officials first came into contact with two mysterious new drugs They heard about them first from stool-pigeons who reported that there were powerful new aphrodisiacs and narcotics being peddled through underworld channels Then police began turning up murders and other violent crimes in which some "unknown" drug had played a part

Laboratory experiments isolated the drugs that were found in the organs of dead men and women In May 1959 samples were sent to Suvete toxicologists in Paris and the drugs were identified

French newspapers were quick to see political implications in the appearance of Dahomey-made Bulcan and Excitin on the European Continent Journalists charged that the drugs were being distributed by Algerians to "undermine" the "moral and physical stamina of Frenchmen and Frenchwomen"

"Arab traders and smugglers working closely with Algerian rebel organizations, are hoping to flood France with these hideous narcotics" the Paris journal Verite claimed They are intent on making the drugs available to soldiers sailors and airmen

There may be some truth in the charges but it can't be the real reason why Bulcan and Excitin are pouring into Europe in ever greater quantities The best guess is that production smuggling and distribution are being carried out purely for profit—and the profit potentials and tremendous

An ounce of pure unadulterated Bulcan is enough to kill ten men—or to keep 50 human beings in a bizarre sex trance for 12 hours!

An equal amount—one ounce—of uncut Excitin will provide maximum aphrodisiacal effect for a dozen human beings

In Dahomey a kilogram — 2.2 pounds—of Bulcan costs about $100 An effective dose of the drug sells for $10 on the retail market—which means that a pound of it brings $8,000—a kilogram, $17,600!

The profit potential on Excitin is not quite so great but it is nonetheless large and makes the risks taken by smugglers well worth their while

Unfortunately, these risks are comparatively few and far between As Dr Le Blanc pointed out, the drugs are almost indistinguishable from face powder or finely sifted flour They must be tested chemically to prove that they are drugs

Hence, large quantities are brought into France Italy Switzerland West Germany, Austria Greece and other European countries by persons posing as tourists carrying boxes of "face" or "talcum" powder

Once brought across a frontier, the drugs are pushed and peddled in much the same way as more familiar narcotics such as cocaine or heroin They appear to have a great appeal for teen-agers eager for "kicks" and to older men and women as well

"Bulcan parties" and "Excitin parties" have been reported in London Manchester, Paris, Marseilles, Zurich Genoa, Milan Frankfurt Munich Salzburg, Thessalonika—and a score of other continental cities!

That these "parties" will end up as wild, unrestrained sex-orgies is a foregone conclusion. What makes matters even worse is that even minute "over-doses" will trigger savage violence and even murder and in the case of Excitin whip human beings into frenzies that can end only in death from exhaustion or heart-strain!

ACTUALLY EUROPEAN medical authorities don't really yet know exactly how or why the drugs do the things they do to the human brain and body

Intensive qualitative and quantitative analyses and studies of the drugs are now being made in a dozen laboratories throughout Europe Carefully controlled tests have been made on volunteer "human guinea-pigs" to study their effects At least some of the results of these tests have become known—and they are terrifying

Here are a few random case histories recently published in a French medical journal

Experiment 31 Male 24 years of age Test with Bulcan About ten minutes after oral administration of drug, subject stalked about wildly but in a trance-like state He raved about visions, dreams and fantasies that he was "seeing" All were erotic in nature and progressed quickly from heterosexual fantasies of a fairly normal type to visions of violently depraved and perverted acts Subject would have attacked those present in the room if he had not been forcibly restrained and then given a powerful sedative

Experiment 54 Female 26 years. Test with Excitin. Subject became violently erotic and——herself and ——various objects of furniture in the room She——more than——during the two hours that the drug held its effect Subject was completely exhausted after the drug wore off and slept soundly for 15 hours" (Author's note certain phrases and passages have been deleted for what must be obvious reasons to the reader)

Experiment 61 Male, 67 years Test with minimal does of Excitin. Subject's response to drug was to achieve a state of erotic excitement normally impossible for a man of this age

Note that phrase "minimal dose!" Actually the amount administered to this subject was less than one-fifth the quantity peddled as a "dose" by the drug-pushers who sell Bulcan and Excitin in Europe's murky alleys and dimly-lit sin-spots!

SWISS narcotics control officer Wilhelm Droetke has been assigned exclusively to investigations and studies of the devil drugs for more than a year He addressed an Interpol agent's meeting in Geneva in July 1963 and had this to say

"Our reports are by no means complete yet it is clear that the illicit traffic in Bulcan and Excitin has already become a major enforcement problem At first the flow of the drugs from Dahomey to Europe was a trickle Already, it has become a steady stream I fear that it will soon become a flood."

Droetke cited some frightening facts and figures He revealed that there had been more than 120 murders that could be attributed to Bulcan orgies in Europe during the first six months of 1962 In Switzerland alone, there have been nearly a dozen deaths ascribed to over-exhaustion after use of Excitin!

Even as he spoke before the Interpol group police in Toulon France uncovered a particularly grisly triple murder resulting from a Bulcan orgy

Toulon of course is the great French naval base There three young sailors had been approached by a drug peddler as they came off their ship The French gobs, offered Bulcan by the dope-pusher, each bought two doses from him

The sailors then picked up three prostitutes went with them to their sleezy apartment and each of the men dumped his double-dose of Bulcan into a glass of wine and drank it

It isn't easy to reconstruct exactly what happened afterwards What is known is that the sailors killed and hideously mutilated the hapless bawds they had picked up!

Police summoned by neighbors who heard the agonized screams of the dying woman, broke down the door to the apartment—but they arrived too late They found the three men in a weird semi-conscious torpor, standing over the ghastly, dismembered bodies with bloody knives still clutched in their hands

The sailors turned and attacked the gendarmes It was necessary for the police to shoot and kill one man and wound a second who died later in the prison hospital The survivor a 21-year old seaman, later gave a confused uncertain account of what had taken place

"I do not remember very much" he stated "We took the thrill-powder Within a few minutes my brain got all twisted up I saw or imagined I saw all kinds of insane pictures and scenes I wanted to kill a woman I wanted to kill a woman as horribly as possible and I knew what I would find great pleasure in killing her I went into the kitchen and got a knife"

A somewhat similar incident occurred at about the same time in Frankfurt, Germany, where a thrill-seeking teen-age high school boy bought Bulcan from a peddler After taking the drug he slaughtered his mother and 12-year-old sister in what horrified detectives admitted were fiendish sex-murders triggered by the Bulcan!

FRENCH OFFICIALS have taken action to stop the traffic by halting shipments at their source—in Dahomey So far these attempts have had little effect In the tangled, trackless "back-country"—swampy, steaming jungle in which few white men have ever set foot—the gris-gris men are safe from detection or interference

Dahomey tribesmen live in mortal terror of the witch doctors They believe that the gris-gris men are able to cast spells to wither their crops infect their cattle and goats with fatal diseases and kill them and their families!

Under such circumstances it is impossible to get the natives to inform on the Devil Drug makers and traders The tribesmen simply will not cooperate in any way with the French authorities

"So far our job consists mainly of making loud and reassuring statements and promises to the press and French public" Inspecteur Antoine Vauxelles the officer in charge of the Dahomey operation, ruefully admits "We've achieved few if any positive results"

It's little wonder The powdered sex-drugs are moved easily enough across the borders of Dahomey to Ghana or Nigeria These long frontiers run through wild virtually impenetrable jungles To guard these borders would require whole armies of men The French don't have them—and the natives would never provide them!

Bulcan and Excitin are also taken across French West Africa by native convoys and caravans to Libya, Egypt and Sudan and transshipped from there to European markets Policing the long and devious routes followed by these caravans is also impossible

There is evidence that the drug-traffickers are branching out Only a few weeks ago, El Paso, Texas authorities reported that quantities of Excitin were being peddled to American tourists across the border in Juarez Mexico!

Luckily the few Excitin samples that have been confiscated and analyzed were found to be "cut" down to a point where they were relatively weak Obviously, Western Hemisphere peddlers are diluting the drug Even so the narcotic is a potent and powerful—and dangerous—aphrodisiac and stimulant

Bulcan has not yet found its way through to American underworld outlets but many authorities fear that it is only a matter of time before one criminal gang or another starts importing it

"When and if that happens, we'll be in real trouble" a federal narcotics agent predicts "A few pounds of Bulcan on the U S underworld market will be enough to kick off a tidal wave of hellish sex-crimes and murders throughout the country"

AS THIS ARTICLE went to press, the outlook was bleak

The French government had offered the new Republic of Dahomey the services of two hard-bitten French Foreign Legion battalions to help wipe out the source of the drugs but it was doubtful if the offer would be accepted

The French had suggested that "the most ruthless measures be employed to wipe out the manufacture and trade in the sex drugs" It was suggested that those found manufacturing the drugs be executed and that those selling transporting or possessing them be imprisoned and held in special concentration compounds under the strictest discipline

By executing the "manufacturers"—the gris-gris men—the French hoped to wipe out the source and they also hoped that the secrets of making the Devil Drugs would die with the witch doctors "Strictest discipline" in the concentration compounds" means that the legionnaires would make life sheer hell for those they might round up

With the Foreign Legion fanning out through the Dahomey back-country there would be a fair-to-middling chance that the traffic in the Devil Drugs would be wiped out

If the legionnaires aren't permitted to act it's doubtful if anyone will ever be able to wipe them out And if the hellish aphrodisiacs and narcotics continue to flow out of Dahomey only God—or the devil himself—knows what the awful costs and consequences will be! ●

Any 12

YES, IT'S TRUE — if you join the Columbia Record Club right now you may have your choice of ANY 12 of the hit records shown here — ALL 12 for only $3.98. And all you have to do is agree to buy as few as ten records (at the regular Club price) during the coming two years.

That's right! — you'll have two full years in which to buy your ten records. After doing so, you'll have acquired a sizable library of 22 records of your choice — but you'll have paid for just half of them ... that's practically a 50% saving off regular Club prices. Without doubt, the Club offers you the best buy in records anywhere!

AS A MEMBER you will receive, every four weeks, a copy of the Club's entertaining music magazine. Each issue describes the regular selection for each musical interest and

Your quick, easy way to spare time earnings, top-pay jobs, or business of your own;

TV-RADIO, ELECTRONICS

TRAIN AT HOME — Learn-by-doing with NRI programmed equipment. All this is yours at no extra cost from Achievement Kit to Color TV, in NRI TV-Radio Servicing course. You gain priceless confidence as you work with your hands as well as your head.

Build your own
COLOR TV

Be a skilled technician in America's fastest growing industry

Regardless of your educational background, you can learn the Electronics field of your choice the practical "hands on" NRI way. The NRI color Catalog, sent to you FREE and without obligation, tells you how you can qualify quickly to be a part of the fastest growing industry in this land. It shows you how you can train at home in your spare time for top-pay positions in industry, in business, or with the government. You'll read how you can get into the exciting field of broadcasting or how you can start a business of your own as a skilled TV-Radio Technician — either part-time or establishing your own full-time shop.

Make $5 or more per hour starting soon

NRI prepares you quickly to cash in on the boom in Color TV, one of the great money making fields you can choose with an NRI diploma. TV Technicians are in demand now to keep millions of color sets in working order. NRI is the only school offering home education in Color TV Servicing that includes a color set totally engineered for training purposes. You learn by doing, demonstrating things you read about in "bite-size" texts as you build and use professional lab equipment. Electronics comes alive in a unique, fascinating, easy-to-understand way. In Color TV, the end product is your own high quality set, yours to keep for years of viewing pleasure.

TRAIN WITH THE LEADER

Tens of thousands of NRI graduates are proof it is practical to train at home in your spare time. NRI gives you a choice of 12 training programs. Five of them include FCC License preparation. You must pass your FCC License exams or NRI refunds your tuition in full. Decide now to move ahead in Electronics. "I am an engineer at KSTF TV and also run a part-time repair business. I have more sets to fix than I can find time for. NRI has changed my whole life and at least doubled my income." Gene Cochran, Scottsbluff, Nebraska.

"I am an AT&T Communications Technician. Because of NRI I was given credit for 18 mos experience and my starting pay raised. They were sure NRI could train me to obtain a 1st class FCC License." Craig D. Sparks, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

"I don't have words to describe how thankful I am to NRI. I'm an electronics technician. Before I took your course I was only a [illegible] at $80 a week. Now I also do TV work outside my job." Ernest Maria, Bronx, New York.

"I find that all my spare time is in demand for repair work around town. I have the lessons from the course and frequently consult them. I doubt there is a better course available." Lyle M. Springer, Grangeville, Idaho.
